Rep's Weaken Rebel Forces

Two or Three Senators Won Over to Mellon Plan But Insurgents and Democrats Still Hold Whip Hand.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 21.—The Democratic coalition which has been formed in the Senate to weaken the Mellon plan has been broken up today by the defection of two or three senators.

It was asserted that two or three of the Republicans who had lined up with the coalition had been won over by the regular Republicans and would go along with them in an effort to be made later to substitute the Mellon plan for the Garner plan which has been written into the bill.

This opportunity will come when the perfected bill is reported to the Senate for passage.

There were 19 Republicans who voted for the Garner plan. Additional converts must be made if the Mellon plan is to triumph in the Senate.

Republican leaders are using several arguments to win the Senate. They are telling the Senate that the Mellon plan is a bill for the purpose of making a change in the tax law.

The tax bill was taken up today with indications of a number of stiff fights ahead on several sections. One of the most stubborn of these will be when the attempt is made to repeal existing taxes on automobiles.

Other contests will arise over efforts by the Republican, Wisconsin, to incorporate in the bill an excess profits tax, a tax on undistributed profits, and a gift tax.

Vanderlip Welcomes Suit

Says Facts Will Be Brought Out in Court—Attacks Congress and Other Officials for Misadministration.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Feb. 21.—"I welcome the suit of the Marion Star and hope it will be the forerunner of other suits," Frank A. Vanderlip, New York financier, said today in his first discussion of the $600,000 libel action brought against him yesterday by Louis H. Brush and Roy D. Moore, owners of the paper formerly published by President Harding.

"The courts are an effective means of bringing out facts," Vanderlip refused to explain this cryptic statement or to discuss the grounds of the libel action, but renewed his attack on what he called the "misadministration of the government."

"I do not believe the facts nor the various government investigations are being fully presented to the country," he said. "I am prepared to spend quite as much as the Marion Star asks in an effort to make public news that the great daily newspapers do not see fit to print."

"There is nothing the country needs quite so much at this moment as some court proceedings initiated by grand juries and pressed by incorruptible prosecuting attorneys," Vanderlip declared.

"Congress today is debating an income tax measure," he said. "It reminds me of a body of men discussing the size of a faucet to be put into a barrel leaking between half the states."

"If we have honest administration of the taxes that are collected the rate of income will take care of itself."

He said the senate called for an investigation twenty-two months ago. "At that time," Vanderlip said, "the red flag of suspicion was run up. For weeks no answer at all was received and now we are recently pressed for, and thereafter, until quite recently, the search for the facts was made with vigor."

Vanderlip commented upon the recent investigation of the veterans' bureau.

"The wholesale dishonesty in the veterans bureau is not a matter of rumor," Vanderlip said. "It is a matter of official record in the committee proceedings and the proceedings of Congress and as far as I am aware there has been no court proceedings initiated. Mr. Forbes and his friends have as yet encountered no court action."

Vanderlip touched briefly on the alien property administration.

"There have been no court proceedings, nor has there been a thorough investigation there," he said, adding: "There are other directions in which court proceedings could be admirable."

Vanderlip pictured himself in the guise of a soldier fighting the attack of a foe upon his country.

"If this country were invaded by an alien foe and I were a young man I would offer myself for its defense. It has been attacked by something more dangerous than a military invasion by a foreign foe. Corruption has attacked the government at its heart."

"I believe I am a patriotic citizen and I propose to offer the same service in fighting this danger that a young man should offer in fighting a military invasion. I am really enlisted in this matter because of profound conviction."

Smith Orders Law Enforced

Calls on Every Elected Official in State to Aid in Carrying Out Volstead Act—Canfield's Address—Special Committee Soon.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Feb. 21.—Governor Smith said today that he intended to do his part as quickly as possible in carrying out the program adopted last night at a conference in the assembly chamber of federal, state and local officials to devise ways and means to have the prohibition law rigidly enforced in New York state.

Within a few days, or a week at the most, the governor will announce the appointment of a special committee, composed of representatives of the federal prohibition bureau, state and city officials to plan better enforcement of the dry law.

The governor served notice on every elected official in the state that he is duty bound to aid in the enforcement of the dry law in the state.

"Every peace officer of this state is in duty bound, under his oath," he said, "to enforce the Volstead act, and this irrespective of what may be the public opinion of any locality as to the wisdom or otherwise of that act."

He called upon the board of supervisors in these and all other counties to make adequate appropriations to aid in enforcing the dry law.

The officials adopted the program agreed upon last fall at a conference of the governors with President Coolidge, in the hope of bringing about better enforcement of the prohibition law.

The governor said: "The preamble of the constitution reads, 'We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America.'"

While we may disagree as to what may establish justice and what might promote the general welfare, or what may secure the blessings of liberty, there is one thing that we cannot disagree on and that is that unless the constitution is obeyed and sustained in its every letter, it can serve no useful purpose. As the chain is no stronger than its weakest link, so also the constitution means nothing if any person or group of persons be permitted to select that part that they are in accord with and dismiss the part that does not meet with their approval.

When we as public officials swear to uphold the constitution of the United States in our oath of office, it means every part of that constitution whether we agree with the principle involved in any one section or not.

The Eighteenth Amendment is a part of that constitution, and just as sacred as any other part. The so-called Volstead Act, making operative that Eighteenth Amendment, is just as sacred as any other law in the country, and we are not here for the purpose of expressing our individual opinions as to the wisdom either of the amendment or the law sustaining it, but we are here to discuss the best and most practical way of enforcing the amendment and the laws sustaining it, so that our conference is one upon law enforcement, and does not run to the principle involved. I think everybody will agree that the proper and vigorous enforcement of all laws is the cornerstone of democratic government.

When any man or group of men are permitted to respect and obey only such laws as meet with their approval, we have not a democratic government formed in perfect union, we cannot establish justice, we cannot insure domestic tranquility, and we cannot promote the general welfare and we cannot secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves or our posterity, but we can bring about a state of anarchy that has its life and its being in disregard of all law.

In our state, penal and regulatory statutes are enforced through three agencies:

1. By the delegation of the state's police power to cities and villages.

2. In the rural communities, by the sheriffs, supplemented by the state constabulary.

3. Under the statutes, by the district attorneys in a general way.

And it is the representatives of those law enforcement agencies that are called here tonight for the purpose of conference and discussion on the subject of law enforcement.

There seems to be an opinion in the minds of some of our officials that there is no obligation upon the various law enforcement agencies of the state to enforce the so-called Volstead Act. Let me here and now relieve them of that opinion because they have come by it in error. The supreme court of the United States said, "The constitution, laws and treaties of the United States are as much the part of the law of every state as its own local laws and constitution." That means that every peace officer of this state is in duty bound under his oath to enforce the Volstead Act, and this irrespective of what may be the public opinion of any locality as to the wisdom or otherwise of such act.

The state itself maintains what is known as the State Constabulary, and through that agency has direct power of law enforcement. The constitution gives to the governor the power of removal of district attorneys and sheriffs after charges and upon being given an opportunity to make answer. The only state enforcement body that the governor exercises complete and direct control over.

BOUTON INTRODUCES "FOOL TIME" REPEALER

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Feb. 21.—Daylight saving time would be prohibited in New York state if a bill introduced in the legislature today by Senator Bouton, Delaware, Republican, is enacted into law.

At present, municipalities have the right to pass local laws providing for daylight saving. The Bouton bill would revoke this power.

Senator Bouton declared the majority of the people of the state are opposed to having one community on standard time and another on "new" time.

Mellon Denies He Contributed

To Fund to Fight Bonus As Charged by Commander Quinn of American Legion.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 21.—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon denied today that he personally had ever made any contribution to the anti-bonus campaign now being conducted by an organization known as the ex-Servicemen's Anti-Bonus League.

"I don't know anything about any organization aimed at defeating the bonus," said Mellon in response to questions.

Mellon's denial today was in connection with a speech by John R. Quinn, national commander of the American Legion in which Quinn charged that a slush fund of $200,000 had been raised by big interests to finance the league and defeat the bonus.

Quinn produced letters written by H. E. Rust, president of the Koppers Company, Pittsburgh, stating that he was making a contribution to the anti-bonus league through George Davidson, vice-president of the Gulf Oil Corporation. Both concerns are identified with the Mellon interests in Pittsburgh. The legion has many other letters, Quinn declared, showing how big industrial concerns have coerced their employees into writing letters to their congressmen and senators opposing the bonus.

The Chicago By-Product Coke Company was another corporation named, also the Aluminum Company of America which Quinn said "experienced some degree of prosperity in the dark days of the war by jumping the price of aluminum to sixty cents a pound."

"I do not know," said Quinn, "whether Andrew W. Mellon has full knowledge of everything that is being done by these various corporations with which he is associated, but I think the evidence fairly conclusive that the secretary of the treasury is not only supporting the paid propaganda in opposition to the bonus but also that employees in his interests are being coerced into writing letters to congress."

MAYER WAGON FACTORY IS OFFERED FOR RENT

The passing of another of Rondout's long established industries is announced in the advertising columns of today's Freeman, where the wagon and auto body manufacturing of John M. Mr. Mayer is retiring from business because of his advanced age and poor health.

There is a unique and interesting display of Washington's Birthday material in the window of Ralph D. The portraits of Washington were collected by an eminent Philadelphia lawyer, and were sold at auction in that city when they passed into the hands of Mr. Clearwater's brother, Judge A. T. Clearwater of this city.

Anderson Was "Fired," He Says

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Feb. 21.—The resignation of William H. Anderson as state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, instead of having been made voluntarily, was forced upon him, the Rev. Rolland Eberhart, who yesterday resigned as editor of the American Issue, the organ of the League, stated today.

"From what I have learned concerning the recent meeting of the board of directors, I know that an ultimatum concerning Anderson was presented to the board by all the district superintendents of the league in this state," the Rev. Mr. Eberhart said. "They demanded that Anderson be dropped and threatened, if he were not, to resign themselves in a body and not to raise another nickel for the league."

The Rev. Samuel J. Hamilton, Metropolitan district superintendent of the League, presented the ultimatum demanding Anderson's resignation, the Rev. Mr. Eberhart said. Anderson had prepared a statement, he added, which was to have been adopted by the board expressing their continued faith in him, but the action of the district superintendents "upset all that and later Anderson presented his resignation."

The Rev. Eberhart said he resigned because he had no faith in the present board of the league.

How Sturgeon Pool Was Named

Interesting Story of a Long-Ago Attempt To Hatch Sturgeon in Rondout Creek At Rifton.

The great dam at Sturgeon Pool near Rifton and the lake created by it attracts the attention and admiration of all travelers on the Rifton-Dashville-New Paltz turnpike, and many stories, most of them apocryphal, have been told concerning the origin of the name because people are incredulous as to sturgeon ever getting so far up the stream.

This is the Freeman has gathered is the true story: Along about 1860 John Smith and William Rand organized the Smith & Rand Powder Company, and built the well known powder works at Rifton. Just below the point where the Swartkill empties into the main stream was a large, beautiful and deep pool of water. John Smith, who lived on Albany avenue in the house now occupied by his grandson, Harry Ensign, had four sons and three daughters; the son here Asa, Albert, Nathaniel and William; the daughters were Caroline, the married Jacob Burdick; Catherine, who married Frank Ensign, and Elizabeth, who married Dr. William M. Decker. Asa Smith who as a boy attended Kingston Academy, was very much interested in fish and fishing.

At that time sturgeon fishing on the Hudson river and in the Rondout creek was at its height. Asa conceived the idea of hatching young sturgeon in the beautiful pool on the Smith & Rand property, and with much trouble procured a quantity of fertilized sturgeon eggs, which he placed in its waters. They hatched out, and Asa promptly took some of his fellow-students from the Kingston Academy to see them. Unfortunately the stream was infested with king fishers, and in one week the king fishers cleaned out every young sturgeon in the pool. The men in his father's employ with a somewhat sardonic humor thereafter spoke of the pool as "Asa's sturgeon pool."

With the passage of time, Asa's connection with the pool has been forgotten, but it has retained the name of Sturgeon Pool to this day.

CABINET OFFICER DEALT IN OIL SHARES INCLUDING THE SINCLAIR COMPANY'S

His Name Turned Up By Accountants Working on Brokers' Books But Will Not Be Published Until Committee Meets—Other Developments.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 21.—The name of a cabinet officer has been found on the books of New York brokerage houses which are now being examined by expert accountants for the senate public lands commission, it was learned today.

The records show that this official dealt extensively in oil stocks, including some shares of Sinclair, it was declared.

News of the oil transactions, which furnished official Washington with another lively sensation in the rapid developments of the naval oil reserve leasing scandal, did not come as a surprise to the committee. Members have heard reports for several weeks that not only the cabinet officer and Senator Davis Elkins, Republican, West Virginia, dealt in Sinclair stock, but that an examination of certain brokerage houses would reveal almost wholesale deals by government officials in oil and steel securities. The most extensive transactions were declared to have been made by the federal officials during the period that ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall was negotiating with Harry F. Sinclair for the lease of Teapot Dome. These facts led the committee to call for books of leading brokers in three cities, Washington, New York and Cleveland.

Though the names of government officials who are listed on stock books are being withheld temporarily, committee members indicated today that the full list of publicly would be thrown on all these transactions at open hearings as soon as the accountants finish their audit of the records. They have concluded the examination of books of at least two prominent brokers and the results of their investigations have been reported to the committee.

The committee itself for the first time since the ten day recess was called last week did not schedule a formal meeting today. Unless some new and unexpected developments arise, Senator Lenroot, Republican of Wisconsin, declared no session would be held until next Monday when Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, leader of the investigation, returns from a short vacation in the south.

The suggestion was advanced by certain members of the committee that Harry F. Sinclair, who has just returned from Europe, should be summoned to the stand. Mr. Sinclair himself is understood to have informed the committee that he was willing to appear again whenever desired. In view of Sinclair's willingness to take the stand, Lenroot indicated that the committee would await his examination until Walsh was able to take the lead in the questioning.

On the other hand, Lenroot admitted that it was possible the committee would resume sessions before Monday, possibly to hear E. B. McLean, wealthy Washington and Cincinnati publisher, whose personal counsel has been in consultation with Senator Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, author of the resolution for an investigation of Attorney General Daugherty. McLean and Daugherty have been warm friends. McLean has been in Washington awaiting a call since last week.

Meanwhile, with rumor falling over rumor, and the committee confronted with a maze of reports indicating even more startling revelations than heretofore unearthed, the special counsel, Owen J. Roberts and Attorney Hughes, were pressing forward rapidly with definite plans to enter the courts and seek recovery of the rich naval reserves. They are keeping in close touch with the committee and are advising members at every step of their plans.

Greene Slightly Better.

Charge Against Levine Is Dismissed; Several Other Kingstonians Indicted In Car Theft Case

Alcon, Aidala, Maltz and Williams Held for Trial By Federal Grand Jury in New York City.

The Federal grand jury in New York city has dismissed the charge against Nathan Levine of North Front street of receiving stolen goods, on which he was arrested with several others on November 27 last.

Levine and others were charged with having received goods which had been stolen from a West Shore freight car at Plum Point, near Newburgh, last August, when the seals on a car were broken and a box hurled out of the car containing women's hosiery and gloves, valued at $1,636. Part of the goods were claimed afterwards by detectives to have been found in the store of Alcon brothers on the Strand.

One of the Alcons was indicted by the Federal grand jury and gave bail. An indictment also was found in connection with the charge against Tony Aidala, who formerly conducted a barber shop on Broadway, near Railroad avenue; Morris Maltz, formerly of this city, and Richard Williams, a negro who was arrested at Roseton charged with having broken the seals on the car which was rifled.

Mr. Levine was represented in the proceeding by William H. Grogan, former Mayor Roscoe T. Davis represented other defendants.

Prompt Offensive With New Snow-Bucking Equipment Put Main Roads of County In Excellent Condition

Fifteen Big Trucks, Many Busses and Four Tractors Push Plows—Tractor Clears 37 Miles for $20.

With about fifteen five-ton trucks with snow plows on the Pine Hill-Kingston auto busses, and three Holt Caterpillar tractors equipped with snow plows and scrapers working on Wednesday, County Superintendent J. F. Loughran and his force of men have gotten the main highways and the principal connecting roads in Ulster county in excellent condition for auto and sleigh traffic. Today the 16-ton Monarch tractor with plow and scrapers was added and was sent up the highway towards Pine Hill, all the other apparatus being at work in different sections.

Superintendent Loughran has had the snow cleaning removal going on since Monday and the principal highways were in good shape when work was started early Wednesday on the snow that was falling. Among the highways over which the trucks and tractors have been working are the Saugerties road, the Flatbush road, the road to Ellenville through Haverly and Stone Ridge, thence toward Rosendale, the Highland highway and the New Paltz road. A five-ton Mack truck equipped with snow plows Wednesday opened a wide roadway over a route of 37 miles at the estimated cost of $20.

The drivers of the passenger auto busses that run in and out this city report the highways over which they travel in excellent condition.

Can you recognize an absurd statement and tell why it is foolish? You should be able to. See if you can tell why the following statements are nonsense.

First read the first sentence and then take fifteen seconds or less to tell yourself why it is funny or foolish. If you succeed, mark that sentence with a plus sign and tackle the next. If you cannot tell why within fifteen seconds, mark it with a minus sign and try the next. You should get most of them right.

Brave Mother Bass

Snakes are destructive of fish. Many students of nature have seen the reptiles injure or kill fresh-water fish, even the swift trout. It is astonishing therefore to learn that the tables may be turned. In a recent bulletin of the American Game Protective association, is an account of the courage of a female black bass in protecting her nest of eggs against an attacking water snake.

A student of fish life was watching the mother bass. Many times fish would come near the nest, but the vigilant mother would drive them off. Presently a water snake came swimming along the bank in the direction of the nest. As quick as a flash the bass was after the reptile. She made her savage attack from the rear, thrashing the water into suds.

When the ripples had quieted down the student observed that a large part of the snake was in the mouth of the bass. Once more the surface of the water became agitated; when it was again smooth the snake was gone and the bass was returning to her nest—YOUTH'S COMPANION.

Hot Water Centennial

Approaching is the centennial of one of the earliest successful installations of a hot water heating system, made by Arthur Wellesley, Duke of Wellington. Before that England had shivered without relief, and the duke had felt called upon to express his opinion of the winter cold in no measured tones. But the same genius which put Napoleon in "hot water" put hot water into Wellington's home, the "Iron Duke," as he was called, being interested in science and invention, and putting his inventive genius to work. Hot water heating came to this country in the middle of the Nineteenth century.

A generous supply of sandals, including all lengths and widths, is kept on hand.

New Plan to Provide Bonus

Senator Owen Takes up Southern Commercial Congress Scheme, to Pay It Almost Entirely With Foreign War Debt Payments.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 21.—A new plan for financing the soldiers' bonus through use of the British debt settlement was proposed today by the Southern Commercial Congress. The plan, based on the principal of amortization, would finance the bonus without increasing taxation and without a drain on the federal treasury, by means of a bond issue to be paid off in fifty years at a cost of only $55,000,000 annually for only $55,000,000 paid the World War veterans. It was designed to meet the objections raised by the President in his veto of the bonus bill, and by President Coolidge in threatening a veto that the bonus bill contained a plan for financing its payments.

The measure will be submitted to the Senate by Senator Owen, Democrat of Oklahoma, who dropped his opposition to the bonus after approving the plan. The amortization scheme was drafted by Clarence J. Owens, president of the Southern Commercial Congress who composed the amortization table used by the United States and Great Britain in planning the British war debt settlement. It was also prepared an amortization table for Germany's reparations payments. Immediate cash for the bonus would be raised, under Owens' plan, by issuing bonds at five per cent interest. This rate would be higher than any other government bonds, thus securing a ready market. By adding one half per cent annually for payments on the principal, the government could pay off the total bonus in fifty years by annual expenditures of $55,000,000 for each billion dollars issued.

If the bonus costs $2,600,000,000, annual payments would total $110,000,000 while a third billion would necessitate the raising of $165,000,000 a year to retire the principal and meet all interest payments for fifty years. The annual cost, Owens proposed, could be met by diverting war debt payments by Great Britain or other allied nations. The British payments alone amount to $161,000,000 a year. In other words, Owens' plan would permit financing the bonus with the expenditure of only $1,000,000 a year from the treasury if its total cost was $3,000,000,000, and if no further debt settlements were entered. If the total bonus cost were less than three billions the British debt payments alone could finance it.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

It was announced today that all the arrangements for the French fighter to leave for America had been completed with the exception of the formalities of signing up for the fight. Carpentier's first fight will be with Tunney in New York in June. The bout will be staged under the auspices of Billy Gibson and is scheduled to go 15 rounds. "I will fight Tunney in short order and then expect to fight Gibbons in August," Carpentier told International News Service today.

English Dock Strike Settled

But Work Will Not Generally Be Resumed Until Monday and Food Is Scarce.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Feb. 21.—Although the strike of dock workers is settled, imports, especially of foodstuffs and mails, were still held up today. The peril of a food famine will not be ended until the agreement between the strikers and the employers is ratified.

At first it was reported the strikers were returning to their posts, but later the dock workers' leaders announced that the strikers would not resume their duties until the agreement is formally confirmed.

The strike of the busmen has been settled also. The ending of these three strikes is another feather in the cap of the Labor government, which has had its hands full settling labor disputes since it came into power less than two months ago.

The terms of the dock settlement were not revealed, but it was understood the employers grant one-half of the wage increase demanded by the men and will grant the remainder within three months.

Coal porters, who struck in sympathy with the dockers, were still idle today.

Pickets from their ranks and those of the dock workers were on duty along the waterfronts.

If the dock agreement is officially ratified tonight sufficient food will be unloaded from ships tomorrow to end the peril of a famine, but there will not be a general resumption of work before Monday.

To Mortgage German Rails

Railways Now The Best In Europe And Free From Debt—Will Be Used Ultimately To Pay Reparations.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, Feb. 21.—German railways will play the most important part in the raising of money for the payment of indemnity, it was learned by International News Service this afternoon.

However, the international reparations experts are not considering German railway revenues in connection with an international loan nor as security for the proposed German gold mark bank. They regard the railways as the ultimate channel for the raising of funds after the German budget is balanced and German currency is stabilized.

Members of the expert's committees pointed out the impracticability of attempting to float a 10,000,000,000 gold mark mortgage loan. They said the world market was such that the bonds could not be sold at this time.

The financial experts said that under normal conditions it would be difficult to sell German bonds. Now, with confidence in Germany shaken, it would be even more difficult to sell German mortgage bonds than it was to dispose of the reparations bonds issued by the inter-allied reparations commission.

It is the opinion of a majority of the committee that the proposed German gold mark cannot await a complete restoration of confidence. They maintain that this institution is necessary to market bonds which will be based upon the mortgaging of German railways.

There is every likelihood that the German government will arrange to classify the railway bonds in various categories, dividing them according to the percentage of income.

The experts found that German railways constitute the only big unencumbered property in Germany. Depreciation of the German mark wiped out the pre-war indebtedness of the railway lines.

Tremendous sums were spent upon railway repairs after the war. The German railway lines are now considered the best in Europe. Their pre-war value was estimated at 25,000,000,000 marks and their annual profits averaged 1,000,000,000 gold marks. This represented only a 4 per cent return. That is regarded as a conservative estimate of what the railway lines can produce in the future.

ALLEN AND MCCLURE TO GIVE CONCERT HERE APRIL 8

On the evening of Tuesday, April 8, at the gymnasium of the Y. W. C. A., C. Baldwin Allen, baritone soloist and J. Clarendon McClure, pianist and accompanist, will give one of their now notable old Scotch and Gaelic song recitals, both gentlemen appearing in full Scotch costume. At a similar recital given at Woodstock last fall, Mr. Hazen who for many years has booked all of the concerts and entertainments for Harvard College was so impressed with the beauty and the unique character of the recital, that though all bookings for this season were then closed, he is now trying to arrange a special date so that Mr. Allen and Mr. McClure may give the Harvard men an evening of their music. On March 6th these two musicians will give a like recital, a private and special musical event at the beautiful new home of Mrs. Matthews, 61 Sixty-second street, New York city.

Daugherty Is Not to Resign

Although Great Pressure Is Being Applied—Coolidge Won't Remove Him Without Proof of Wheeler's Charges.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 21.—A sword of Damocles, with its threat in the hand of President Coolidge, dangled today over the political head of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty.

Tremendous pressure was being exerted on the president from every side—in the name of party expediency—to sever the string by demanding Daugherty's resignation in the face of charges of malfeasance in office. Against the advice of Republican leaders, senate spokesmen and his personal advisers, the president apparently was holding firm to a promise that the attorney general will remain in the cabinet until he has had a fair trial on the charges leveled at his conduct of the department of justice.

The senate, overwhelming opposed to the attorney general, was moving toward enactment of the Wheeler resolution authorizing an investigation of Daugherty's record and into sensational charges of corruption made by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana. It was predicted in senate cloakrooms that the resolution would be enacted by nightfall.

Convinced that the president would not weaken in his determination to give Daugherty a fair chance to vindicate himself, Republican party leaders turned their guns directly upon the attorney general himself. To please that the voluntarily resign "for the good of the party," and as a means of quieting Democratic attacks, the attorney general turned a deaf ear. He was reported to have told his advisers that he was guilty of no crime and that the hounding critics could never drive him out of office.

The attorney general's defiance of his foes was reported to the senate today by Senators Lodge of Massachusetts and Pepper of Pennsylvania, who went to the White House late yesterday to advise his removal. The president was said to have told the senators that while perfectly willing for Daugherty to resign voluntarily, he could not demand the resignation.

Republican leaders of the Senate however, were hopeful the attorney general would weaken. In its entire republican membership only a handful of senators were openly in favor of continuing Daugherty in office. Senators Willis and Pess, from his home state of Ohio, Watson of Indiana and Moses of New Hampshire. They contended the attorney general was entitled to a fair trial before being condemned, that no charges had been proved against him and that rather than failing to prosecute criminals Daugherty had brought so many prosecutions as to practically paralyze the limited federal judiciary—a condition for which congress itself was responsible.

Senator Wheeler who sponsored the proposed investigation, announced he would force test vote upon his resolution during the day.

Wheeler denounced Daugherty's reply to his charges. The attorney general, he said, failed to make any reply to these charges:

1. The department of justice failed to produce any evidence in the oil lease scandals.

2. That Daugherty failed to prosecute E. L. Doheny, H. F. Sinclair, A. B. Fall, or C. R. Forbes, "all publicly accused of fraud and corruption."

"That influence was purchased within the department of justice to nullify criminal prosecutions."

"These are sufficient reasons for Daugherty's immediate resignation," Wheeler added. "In addition, I have further evidence in my possession now which will convince every fair minded person and the president himself that the attorney general should no longer remain in the cabinet."

Before a vote can be reached on Wheeler's resolution, an agreement must first be reached on his proposal to name an "independent" controlled investigating committee. A compromise was being sought to have the committee members proposed and voted directly from the floor of the Senate.

Senator Wheeler, to whom E. L. Doheny, lessee of the Elk Hills reserve, sent a telegram denying that he (Doheny) had ever been in the apartment of Attorney General Daugherty, or even was a friend of Daugherty, as charged by Wheeler on the floor of the senate two days ago, told International News Service today.

"I shall pay no attention whatever to Doheny's telegram."

INCREASING CONFIDENCE.

Had there been any doubt as to the increasing confidence of the people in the Republican party it would have been dispelled by the attendance at Lincoln Day observances all over the country. The celebrations were attended more generously than ever, and this did not apply alone to the big cities, the smaller centers and remote places proving their faith in the party conceived by the man whose worth to the nation grows larger as the country grows older. Of course the Coolidge dinner in New York was big, but events elsewhere also indicated that the Republican party, the party of Lincoln, has nothing to fear in the coming campaigns.

Lincoln's birthday has always been the occasion for Republican meetings, and, while ample attendance could always be counted upon, it would seem as if this year there was immeasurably more interest in the dinners, some of the organizations reporting more present than could be comfortably accommodated. The radio had something to do with the success of the meetings in the rural districts, for the Coolidge speech was carried into every corner of the state, perhaps every corner of the nation. This would attract a larger audience than usual, or when speakers of lesser prominence were to be heard.

But that there was more zeal among Republicans on Lincoln's birthday in 1924 than there was in 1923 was shown also by the demand for speakers. It would appear as if every city in the state had arranged Lincoln day observances. In many instances it was almost impossible to obtain speakers, and it is reported that some were pressed to make two speeches on that night. It is further stated that some organizations which planned celebrations had to give them up because of their failure to get some one to give a satisfactory talk.

A careful perusal of the smaller daily and weekly newspapers establishes the fact that Lincoln day observances this year were bigger than ever and that there were many more of them than formerly. While the big event was at the Waldorf in New York, what was done there was heard in the smaller towns where local speakers were willing to give way for the president, a Republican president and a president who will continue to grow in the estimation of the people as did the man in whose honor the Waldorf dinner was given—Abraham Lincoln.

FORWARDING GOSSIP.

On reading the accounts of Frank A. Vanderlip's Ossining speech and on finding from "Who's Who" that he is a man of real distinction, with European decorations in addition to his American honors, it was only natural to conclude that he was in possession of verified facts and was to make an important disclosure. But on reading the story of his examination by the Senate committee, one inevitably turned again to "Who's Who" to ascertain his age, wondering if the period of mental deterioration had come upon him, only to find a bare sixty years credited to him. More whispered gossip can be passed along in the "same way," but until verified it cannot be shouted from the house tops without involving the shouter in difficulties. Mr. Vanderlip intimated that he was willing to sacrifice himself as a patriotic duty in order to establish the truth. He did not succeed in accomplishing the latter, but he is probably now aware that his success in the former was beyond his expectations.

A remarkable feature of this astonishing indiscretion was Mr. Vanderlip's attack on the press for not publishing the same scandalous gossip. Curiously enough, he seems not to know that, apart from the reputable newspaper's desire to do justice, the average journalist is as keen to protect himself from the law for libel as the burnt child is solicitous to keep its fingers out of the fire. The experienced journalist knows that unblushing lies have been told about every president, and that Presidents Cleveland and Wilson were numbered among the greatest sufferers. Mr. Vanderlip has at least performed the service of reminding scandal mongers that it is wiser to confine themselves to whisperings or hints in clubs, cloak rooms or before selected audiences on street corners.

According to Israel Zangwill, "all America's bad customs have spread to Europe." If that's so, life in Europe can hardly be as infinitely more desirable as Mr. Zangwill has gone about assuring us that it is.

FATTY HEART.

This is really not an uncommon condition, and the symptoms can be so embarrassing that a few words may be of help to one afflicted.

The first thing to remember is that fat is accumulating around the heart, and actually in between the muscle fibres of the heart, just because it is another place for it to accumulate.

You see one afflicted with a fatty heart has been putting on fat all over the body, and the heart simply shares in the general increase. He may be free of any real symptoms until he tries to do something a little more than usual, walk a bit faster, run a short distance for a car, any extra exertion in fact, and immediately his breath becomes labored; he has palpitation, tightness of the chest, and dizziness. In fact he may have a complete collapse.

So, if you are putting on an excess of fat, and a little exertion causes above symptoms get busy with yourself.

You accumulated the fat in only one way—eating more than was necessary. In young people it may be an inherited tendency to the accumulation of fat.

You correct the fatty heart condition by first cutting down on your food, particularly starchy food, and all liquids.

The next step is systematic exercise to help to strengthen up the muscle of the heart. The heart in fact is all muscle.

There is just this one point to remember.

If you are under forty, you will be in fair shape to stand the food reduction and the exercise.

In the matter of food, liquids should be cut down to the lowest possible amount as I said above. Vegetables and bread also. I know that meats and eggs may be a little hard on the heart and kidneys, but they can be safely used where regular exercise is taken.

If you are past forty, make the food reduction very gradual. Don't be in a hurry to reduce. It may weaken your whole system.

And be careful with the exercise. Take plenty of walking, and gradually increase the distance and pace. It is not unusual in cities where they have good sized hills or small mountains adjacent, to see numbers of these stout people with fatty hearts, walking up the ascent to different heights, and at various rates of speed.

It is simple, it is safe, and it gives results.

HOW

NATIVE OF SOLOMON ISLES COUPTS HIS YOUNG BRIDE

In the case of more important members of a community in the Solomon Islands, a boy and girl are pledged to marry each other in their infancy—sometimes even before they are born. When the boy reaches the age when he can go fishing all his catches go to his intended's parents, none to his own. The pledged boy and girl are not permitted to associate in any way during adolescence.

The girl is tattooed from the wrist to the knees at about the age of thirteen or fourteen, and at a festival she parades with the other young girls quite naked, covered with bright yellow paint and wearing leaf garlands. This happens for several festivals, until she is deemed ready for marriage. A few days before the first festival after her marriage she again parades, naked except for a thick coating of red and yellow paint, and then makes for the "devil-devil" house.

Here young bachelors dash forward and scrape off portions of the paint with palm leaves to retain as souvenirs. That night her husband comes to her but, where are gathered also the parents of both bride and groom. The young couple do not set up housekeeping together until the wife presents her husband with a baby. The bride continues to live in her parents' house, the husband only visiting her by stealth at night.—Detroit News.

How Big Wind Storms Are Often Developed

Wind storms of great force which sweep over great stretches of country are often developed in mountainous regions on perfectly still days.

If the sun heats down steadily upon a great perpendicular face of rock the air is heated and begins to rise. As it moves upward currents are formed as the air rushes in to fill the partial vacuum. In a short time the air currents are rising with considerable force upward along the wall of rock, gaining momentum as they go. On reaching the top they are likely to sweep over the edge and either descend on the other side or continue across the country. Such winds are developed in the Rocky mountains and travel for many miles.

The Indians are greatly mystified by these winds, which seem to come out of a clear sky, and attributed them to the "spirits," says F. A. Collins in Boys' Life.—Detroit News.

How to Tell Fish's Age

The age of a cow is more or less accurately determined by the rings around the horns; the horse-wise person will tell the age of a horse by its teeth. The rattlesnake's age is shown by its rattles, and a tree by its rings. Now a scientist gives the information the scales of fish bear marks which indicate the length of life and the rate of growth in different years. The scale grows in proportion with the rest of the fish. The fish grows at different seasons of the year. Concentric ridges form around the edge of the scale, its marginal expansion in summer being more rapid than in winter, so that the growth during each year is usually distinguishable. Studies of the scales of whitefish in the Great Lakes have shown that the scale characters are so well defined that they indicate the age of the individual fish and the rate of growth of the species.

How Leap Year Originated

Leap year comes every fourth year. In those years divisible by four without remainder; the exceptions are those years which end with two ciphers and which are not divisible by 400. Thus, 1700, 1800 and 1900 were not leap years, but 2000 will be a leap year. The last eight-year skip was from 1800 to 1904. The exact length of a year, or the time taken for the earth to travel around the sun, is a fraction over 365 days. To make up this fraction, which amounts to 5 hours 48 minutes 46.05 seconds, astronomers hit upon the plan of adding an extra day to certain years. The name was evidently derived from the fact that these years skipped or leaped a day.

EVENING
FAIRY TALE

by Mary Graham Bonner

BILLIE BROWNIE'S CALLS

Billie Brownie, who had been given the power by Mother Nature to understand her children, thought he would like to talk to a beaver.

He went to a beaver home in a marsh and, sitting near the great Beaver establishment, he talked to little Master Brown Beaver.

"I was one of four," said little Master Brown Beaver. "My mother was barely two years old. She was what you would call a young mother, but that is the way with Beavers."

"Their mothers are young and their daddies are young, too; but it does not mean they act like children."

"No, they grow up and become wise and solemn and of full growth by the time they are two years old. So it is with me."

"I am a good worker—we all like to work, to build and to do what we can. And I'm a strong beaver, just as all the members of our family are strong and healthy."

"I eat good, substantial meals of the bark of willows and small aspens."

"These make me strong. Then, too, it doesn't make any difference, really, about the trees, as these trees, they say, are of little use and of little value as timber."

"That is what the authorities say, and authorities, I have been told, know what they are talking about. They wouldn't be authorities if they didn't."

"But I must go on with my work. It is getting late, and when it gets late I get busy. For we like to work at night best."

"I've some relatives in the zoo, too, I'm told. They are friendly and affectionate, and make good pets. They work hard, too, and often help the zoo people."

"Sometimes they do work which is not expected of them and which isn't just the work that is wanted, but no matter! We're all hard workers."

"So I mustn't talk too much, but must really get to work."

"I've talked a great deal for a beaver. We're quiet, you know—a quiet lot, all of us."

"Good-by," Billie Brownie said, "and I'm thankful to you for this little talk." "You're welcome, you're welcome," Billie Brownie said. Master Brown Beaver, as he turned to his work with great energy.

Then Billie Brownie went to call on the Ounce, or Snow-Leopard, as he is usually called. To call on him Billie Brownie went to a zoo.

"My home was in the mountains of Asia, where there was snow," the

"I've Been Cross Ever Since I Came."

Snow-Leopard told Billie Brownie.

"And I don't like zoo life."

"I've been cross ever since I came here and I expect to be cross always."

"I've not a good disposition. I've what you might call an ugly disposition."

"But here there are no mountains, and never enough snow. And it all makes me mad."

"Even when I'm free I'm not what you'd call a sociable, pleasant, friendly animal."

"No, Billie Brownie, I only care to snarl at you. I don't care to talk pleasantly to you."

So Billie Brownie left the Ounce, or Snow-Leopard, and went to call on the lions, elephants and the rhinoceros, and the monkeys. All of these were far more friendly and talked to Billie of the good meals they had had, and still expected to have, and of friendly keepers and of admiring crowds of boys and girls who came to visit them.

And then Billie Brownie went home to tell the others of the animals he had seen on his latest trip.

It was fourteen to three.

Two little boys who had been naughty were told by their teacher that they must stay after school and write their names 500 times. One of them began to watch the other unhappily.

"Why don't you write, Tommy?" asked the teacher.

Tommy burst into tears. "Isn't fair!" he said between sobs. "His name's Lee and mine's Schluttermeyer."

A Quaker Oath.

Two small boys in a family of friends had a disagreement during which the older boy became very much incensed.

Finally, no longer able to control himself, he took his brother by the shoulders and shook him, with the exclamation: "Oh, thee little you, thee!"

Then, as the enormity of his offense came over him, he said in a changed voice: "Don't tell mother I swore."

A tidy craft in the gray boat. With its spotless napery. A better boat is never afloat. As it sails the damask sea.

And the captain of the gray boat. As the cargo comes ashore. Is mother's self, the dear old elf. And we ask one helping more.

FAVORITE RECIPES

This is the time of the year when everyone likes to try his hand at making candy. Here is one worth while:

Nut and Date Chocolate.—Heat one-quarter of a cupful of honey or maple syrup, to the boiling point.

add one-half pound of sweetened condensed milk and let stand over hot water until the chocolate is soft enough to add one package of dates cut in quarters, one half cupful of almonds, cut into shreds, and one teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Mix well with a wooden spoon until well-blended. Have ready a brick ice cream mold or a square-cornered breadpan, lined with waxed paper. Press the confection well into the mold and cover with a weight. Let stand in a cold place until firm; remove the paper and cut in slices.

Cottage Cheese Pie.—Take one cupful of cottage cheese, two-thirds of a cupful of maple syrup, two-thirds of a cupful of milk, the yolks of two well-beaten eggs, two tablespoonsful of melted butter, a little salt and one-half teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. Mix in the order given and bake in an crust. Cool slightly, cover with a meringue and brown in a slow oven.

Raisin Paste for Sandwiches.—Take two cupfuls of raisins, washed, dried and put through a meat grinder; add one-half cupful of orange juice, two tablespoonsful of lemon juice, one teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of ground nut meats or one-half cupful of peanut butter. Mix smooth and pack into jelly glasses and cover. This will keep some time.

If an omelet or part of one is left try the Italian method of serving this leftover: Cut the omelet into strips, heat in butter, sprinkle with grated cheese and serve with a celery or tomato sauce. This is a choice dish, not a leftover.

When making chicken pie add a cupful of cooked sausage to the chicken when making the pie. It is not only a neat extender, but adds flavor.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Miller of Woodstock called on his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Miller Sunday.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hoyt of Poughkeepsie. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hoyt and daughters, Julia and Roberta of Shady.

A Business Story

Rich in meaning to every motor car buyer

How Studebaker reached the heights

THE story of Studebaker has been told by many men in many ways. Now let us tell it to you.

Studebaker growth has in late years been Motordom's sensation. Sales have mounted until last year 145,000 buyers of quality cars selected Studebakers. They paid over $200,000,000 for them.

All must realize that a new situation has arisen in high-grade cars. You who are interested should now analyze the reasons.

72-year traditions

The Studebaker principles have become traditions in their 72 years of existence. They have never wavered. In all changing conditions they have brought new luster to that name.

Men come and go, but a name like this becomes a heritage to foster and enhance. That's what we've done — we who have that name in keeping for a time.

Studebaker has always been a leader. For two generations it led in horse-drawn vehicles, now products of the past.

Most of you remember Studebaker carriages — queens of their time. They were used by multitudes of people who loved quality and style.

When motor cars succeeded them, Studebaker became the logical leader in that field. Any other place would have been an anomaly.

The only way to the top

A concern of this age has one fact ingrained in its fiber. The only way to leadership is through superior service.

The leader must excel in all you seek — in quality, in beauty and in value. There is no other way to the top. Every stretch of the road is strewn with wrecks of those who tried another.

What others say — not what you say — determines your place in the long run. In every field of endeavor one must accept that fact.

We had the money, the plants, the prestige. We had the incentive of Studebaker traditions. In time we secured the men.

We told those men to build for us the utmost in fine motor cars, regardless of all costs. We pledged them our good faith and our resources.

The cost was $50,000,000

We built new factories — modern plants. We fitted them with new equipment — 12,500 up-to-date machines.

Over $50,000,000 in modern plants and equipment to build the finest of fine cars.

One of these cars, built in 1918, has run 475,000 miles. That means 80 years of ordinary service. In December this car made the trip from coast to coast.

chines. Of the $50,000,000 in our plants and equipment, $32,000,000 has been invested in the past five years. So it represents the last word in efficient manufacture.

We established a Department of Methods and Standards, to fix for every Studebaker detail the maximum of quality.

We created a Bureau of Research and Experiment, employing 125 skilled men. They make 500,000 tests per year to maintain our supremacy.

They fixed countless standards, including 35 separate formulas for steels. Then on the most important steels we offered makers a bonus of 15% to conform to those standards exactly.

We invested $8,000,000 in a drop forge plant to make all our own drop forgings. $10,000,000 in body plants, to build all bodies to our standards.

We employed 1,200 skilled inspectors to see that all standards were fulfilled. There are 30,000 inspections on Studebaker cars during manufacture, before they go out from the factory.

That's the whole story

That's about the whole story. We simply followed the never-changing Studebaker principles. We gave to our buyers the utmost — values they could not match. Then they turned by tens of thousands to Studebaker cars.

Over 750,000 of those cars have gone out. Their performance has developed a demand for 150,000 per year.

Every increase in sales brought a lowered cost, which we promptly gave our buyers. Today these fine cars are offering values which no rival can approach. They have made us the world's largest builders of quality cars.

Dr. Estebrook at Women's Club

Former Kingstonian Addresses Atharhacton and Monday Club Members on "Genetics."

On Wednesday afternoon the Atharhacton Club met with Mrs. Carl Preston at the Huntington. The afternoon was devoted to an address on "Genetics," given by Dr. Arthur Estebrook, formerly of Kingston, now of Philadelphia. The members of the Monday Club were the most fortunate guests of the Atharhacton Club, which served delicious light refreshments before the address. Mrs. Edgar N. Palen, president of the Atharhacton Club, presided at the prettily appointed tea table with its springlike decorations of daffodils. Just before introducing Dr. Estebrook, Mrs. Palen announced that the next meeting of the Atharhacton Club would be with Miss Easley at the home of Mrs. Boece on Main street. She then introduced Dr. Estebrook, who while in Kingston did some extensive research work in connection with the "Jukes" family and has since been continuing his research work among the people of the mountains of the south; the Carolinas, Tennessee, Kentucky, etc. The subject of Dr. Estebrook's address was "Genetics," and while the address was markedly scientific and often technically so, the subject was presented so clearly and logically and at the same time interestingly, that the intense attention of the audience was the speaker's from start to finish. He showed how the study of man, which has made considerable progress in recent years, is the study of all phenomena. Then he explained that the particular study in question was that of the children and the children's children, as they were a part of the family showing in their inheritance different or similar traits. It was surprising the advance there has been made in the solution of problems of inheritance in man; in the lower animals, even in plants in the last twenty years, as described by Dr. Estebrook, and the study in all three branches is proving mutually helpful. The further development of the address showed markedly the difference between the ideas of the uplifters and the biologists. Dr. Estebrook described some of the genetic experiments with the tiny fruit fly, which went very far to prove that heredity does influence its progenitors while environment may influence them. Going into the realm of music, for instance, the speaker showed conclusively that musicians are really born, not made, and that having those qualities which make for the musician they enjoy using them. Going into the matter of general mental ability, Dr. Estebrook devoted considerable time to telling more about the far-famed "Jukes" family than most of those present knew, every bit of which was full of interest. Next Dr. Estebrook took up the scientifically greatest health survey in the world's history at the beginning of and continuing through the war of 1917. It was found that the levels of intelligence were more or less inherited, and there will be countless other findings as the result of that health survey for some time to come. Then Dr. Estebrook told somewhat of his more recent experiences in the southern Appalachian mountains and in closing his address stated that the study of genetics has only just begun. No sooner had he closed his address than he was pelted with questions and his answers and the following discussion, were almost as interesting as his original address, which will offer food for thought to those who were so fortunate as to hear it, for some time to come.

Tribute Money.
During the administration of Thomas Jefferson, the Barbary states gave trouble, not only to the United States, but to the European powers, because of the pirates that infested the waters of this part of the coast of North Africa. The European powers had been accustomed to pay them tribute in order that their vessels might not be molested. The American Government had entered upon the same practice. cargoes of presents were sent now and again to appease the greed of these pirates. The demands became so exorbitant that our Government at last sent a small fleet to the Mediterranean, which taught the pirates that blackmailing must stop. This is the only instance in which the United States had paid tribute to any country.

New Thing in Lenses.
It is well known that pure quartz possesses the property of transmitting very abundantly the so-called chemical rays of light, by means of which photographic effects are produced, and it has often been attempted to make photographic lenses of quartz alone. Unfortunately, quartz also possesses the property of double refraction, so that, unless the opening of the lenses is very narrow, good images are not produced. A French optician, E. Morin, is reported to have succeeded in making small photographic lenses of quartz glass in which some of the difficulties have been avoided and the lenses show great rapidity of action.

Author of "Mother Hubbard."
Mother Hubbard's tale is a satiric poem in the style of Chaucer, written by Edmund Spenser (1572-1599). It is assumed to have been recited by the poet during a time of sickness by an old woman called Mother Hubbard, and recounts the adventures of an ape and a fox that formed a union to het-ter fortunes. After meeting with a variety of experiences they finally came to grief at the court of King Lion. The nursery tale of Mother Hubbard, who "Went to the cupboard to get her poor-dog a bone," is the one, however, usually associated with the above title.

Drilling Holes in Glass.
Holes may be drilled in glass in the following manner: Dip a pointed, three-cornered file in pure turpentine.
Put the point of the file where the hole is to be drilled and twist the file first in one direction and then in the opposite direction, bearing down lightly on it. Turn the handle of the file around slightly in the hand and twist it a number of times. You may find it necessary to dip the file in turpentine again before the hole can be drilled entirely through the glass.
After the hole is drilled, it can be smoothed with emery cloth.

To Ripen Bananas.
The best way to ripen bananas is to hang them in a dark room at about 70 degrees Fahrenheit, well ventilated and kept at a high humidity. Humidity should be at about 85 to 90 per cent.
There are many variations to this practice.

Cantilever Shoe for Men & Women

No Metal Used in Construction

THE flexible arch of a Cantilever Shoe, which curves up to give an arch swathing effect, is held permanently in place by a special process of putting on the sole.

There is no metal used in the arch to hold it up in a stiff position. The very best of sole leather is used and the upward curve under the shoe arch is forced permanently in place by workers skilled at this one factory operation. The absence of metal in the shank allows a flexible action with the foot movement.

"Nothing takes the place of leather."

Let us demonstrate this and many other features of the famous Cantilever Shoe.

New Dry League Superintendent

Arthur J. Davis Has Had Long Experience as Prohibition Worker in New England—Has Conducted Political Campaigns.

Arthur J. Davis of Boston has been appointed state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York to succeed William H. Anderson whose resignation was recently accepted by the board of directors of the league.

The following are among the outstanding statements Mr. Davis made in his first interview in his new position:

"It is practically impossible to announce my policy at present. It is my purpose to make a careful study of existing conditions and the machinery of the League in this state. Until this is done, I can only say that I shall be guided by fundamental principles and policies of the Anti-Saloon League of America. I contemplate no changes in the personnel of the staff. No man will be employed on any form of commission basis. That is absolutely against my principles. Every man in the employ of the league will be expected to make good on the job. Every man will be paid an adequate salary and expected to earn it, but no commissions will be tolerated. I have nothing to do with the past management of the league. With regard to league management at present, I have been here 12 hours and have been meetings reporters and photographers most of that time, so I have had no opportunity as yet to formulate any policy.

"I believe firmly in the need of educational work to show the people of the state that prohibition was not put over but was enacted in the orderly manner ordained by the constitution of the United States, second that it resulted from years of agitation against the saloon and the liquor traffic and was not a sudden fanatical move resulting in drastic legislation, third that even under lax enforcement it has produced splendid results upon the industrial and social life of the country. New York state is ripe for an educational campaign along these lines. It can be conducted by the use of moving pictures, lectures, articles in the press and even by means of the radio. When once people realize that this is their law, that it is a good law and one which will help in home building and child welfare, they will more willingly accept and obey it."

Mr. Davis declared that he is not conversant yet with the political aspect of prohibition in New York State nor the legislative situation and, therefore, not capable of making any statement on the league policy in this regard until he has made a study of it.

Mr. Davis was formerly state superintendent of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League and regional superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New England and New York.

During his term as superintendent of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League that state ratified the 18th Amendment. He has had active political experience in the management of campaigns for contestants for state office. For several years he was and still is vice-president of Scientific Temperance Federation of Boston, also a member of the executive committee of the World League Against Alcoholism. ## ONEONTA PLANS TO HAVE A FAST BASEBALL CLUB

The Oneonta Star says: With "Al" Bridwell eliminated as a possible manager of the Oneonta ball team the coming summer the officials of the athletic association have turned to prominent baseball magnates to recommend a suitable man for the position and several names have been suggested to them. In view of the fact that many have already made engagements for the summer it has been decided to act promptly to secure the right man. Accordingly the Hon. D. F. Wilber, president of the association, and Vice Presidents Marx and Keyes are arranging to leave later in the week on a trip to several eastern cities to interview and look up certain men who have been recommended to them. Not only will the men themselves be interviewed but those in position to know the qualifications of the men under consideration will be seen and their views obtained.

In the meantime without waiting for the engagement of the manager, who it is hoped will be one who will play regularly, if such a man can be found, the management is arranging to close contracts with Eckstein, Scanlon, Singack, Boylan and Davis of last season's team and it is hoped that within a day or two all of these will have affixed their "John Hancock" on the dotted line, forming the nucleus of the team.

It is anticipated that if the right party can be secured that there will be a business manager in charge of all the business matters of the club. It is believed that this will assure better and more systematic bookkeeping, with the games more thoroughly and well advertised and with the many things essential in readiness when the umpire calls "Play" at the Neahwa grounds. With an enterprise involving such a large outlay it is believed that business management is important and that the right man will prove about the best investment that can be made.

NOVELTIES IN TRIMMINGS OF WOOLEN MATERIALS

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

With Washington's Birthday at hand, our thoughts are in retrospect and powdered wigs and beauty patches again seem desirable. Every so often, there is a more or less serious effort to bring powdered hair into fashion. Paris made adorable little wigs out of silk floss and women wore them, and not always to costume parties, nor were they always white. It was a fascinating game, one could be white haired, a dashing brunette, a lovely blonde, or else handsomely Titian haired, as the mood prompted.

All this leads up to the saucy little tams which are an aftermath of the wig. They are made to fit over the head like a wig, no rakish pulling to one side, but worn straight over the hair entirely concealing the color of it, or allowing a bit to protrude over the ears. One of the most admired girls at Palm Beach affects these tams either in white or gray, and as her hair is very black, these changes of appearance due to the tam, are startling. Tams of this type are frequently made of loops of silk or mercerized wool, and are of course only appropriate for sportswear and what fascinating skating caps they are, for all their being worn on sunny beaches.

Nor are these the only interesting woolen novelties seen just now both north and south. Not only are knitted suits of all kinds affected by smart women, but sweaters have returned, sweaters which do not mould the form, but which are by some clever designing made to preserve a straight line to the hips, never interrupted by a belt, although sometimes belted.

One bloused model in a soft green was striped from the edge to a high waistline, the sweater blousing slightly. Types which button down the front are very popular just now, when a row of buttons means that one is well informed as to the details which make for charm.

"MISSING LINK" IS CALLED MYTH

Professor Says Evolution of Man Was Gradual Process.

How old is man? When, where and how did he originate? That the theory of evolution has now advanced far beyond Darwin's conception was the statement made at the recent Cincinnati meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, by Dr. J. P. McMurich, the retiring president. Doctor McMurich is professor of anatomy in the University of Toronto and on his return home was asked by an interviewer to elucidate in straightforward terms the present state of scientific knowledge respecting this fundamental question of the origin of man.

The theory of evolution did not originate with Darwin, Doctor McMurich pointed out. It was frequently expressed even in classical times. Darwin by his experiments was able to promulgate a plausible explanation of how evolution undoubtedly took place in organic life.

"Missing Link" is a Myth.

The "missing link," the stock joke of a generation ago, was a myth. Doctor McMurich declared. Evolution has been a gradual process. There are gaps, it is true, but that proves nothing. It is like looking at a ladder with some of the rungs missing. There is enough of the outline to prove it a ladder nevertheless.

Then Professor McMurich made this striking statement:

"There is a big gap between man and the ape, but less than between the ape and the monkey. I mean that the difference is less between man and the highest ape than between the highest ape and the lowest monkey. I am speaking anatomically, of course.

"But I do not believe that any living monkey came into the line of descent of any living ape or that any living ape came into the descent of man. I think that all of them are offshoots. The origin of man goes back beyond the origin of any ape now living.

"We cannot say where man stops and the ape begins. Evolution being a gradual process extending over hundreds of thousands of years, how can we?"

Difference in Living Races.

Certain striking anatomical differences even between the races of present-day man, were pointed out by Professor McMurich. There is a distinct difference in detail of bodily structure between the Australoid race, the Australian aborigine and the Caucasian or white race.

The organs of life of the Australoid woman show a decided variation from those of the white woman. The Australoid, in fact, is still very much of a mystery human. His origin remains one of the interesting problems of the biologist. Much is hoped for from research now being conducted by the University of Sydney.

The South African bushman, a negro type, also differs from the Caucasian, anatomically. And there seems also to be divergences in the case of the Mongolian, the fourth distinct race of mankind.

High Spots in Discoveries.

High spots in origin-of-man discovery since Darwin's time include the following:

The Java fossils consisting of skull, teeth and thigh bone found at Trinil, Java, in strata which the geologists say are 500,000 years old. They are the earliest trace so far discovered of man or sub-man.

The Heidelberg skull or jaw bone, said by geologists to be 200,000 or 250,000 years old.

The Piltdown (Sussex, England) skull with near human teeth which the Heidelberg skull lacked altogether—50,000 to 100,000 years old.

Many traces found in Europe of the Neanderthal man—a quite passable human being, 50,000 years ago.

Equally frequent traces in Europe of the Cro-Magnons of 25,000 to 40,000 years ago—the first true man with human hand, human brain, able to draw pictures on the walls of caves in France, where survivors of his race are still said to persist.

"Skulls Make Good Series."

The ape skull, the Java skull, the Piltdown and Heidelberg skulls, the Neanderthal skull and the skull of present-day man make a pretty good series," said Professor McMurich. "They fit in pretty well. Not continuously of course. There are great gaps, not in exactly related progression, either. But then there were undoubtedly several lines of descent and some of these skulls have been on collateral instead of direct lines.

"I do not think we have by any means got a direct line of succession, but all discoveries so far have pointed in the same direction. You cannot say that man is descended from the apes, but I think you can say that men and the apes have had an evolution along parallel lines."

Darwin held the theory of one original stock, but scientists now, said Professor McMurich, are gradually coming around to the idea of several divergent lines. Quite possibly in ages gone by there were different types or races of men or sub men living at the same time.

In fact, it is known that Neanderthals and the Cro-Magnons existed for centuries side by side in Europe until the former disappeared. Just as at the present time the Nordics, the Alpines and the Mediterraneans, three distinct branches of the Caucasian race, live side by side in Europe, and the Caucasians are gradually replacing the Australoids in Australia.

Beginning of Speech an Epoch.

When did man become man? When did he get a mind and those spiritual attributes which we call a soul? The retiring president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science said he does not know. Probably the acquiring of a mind took countless thousands of years. No doubt the mental processes of man underwent an evolution which paralleled his physical development.

The beginning of speech, no doubt, marked an epoch. Then man's mind began to develop.

Where does science place the Garden of Eden? There have been many theories. Professor McMurich recalled having read a geological treatise theorizing that Eden was within the Arctic circle when the area was included in the tropics. Genesis seems to place it near the junction of the Tigris and the Euphrates.

But the scientist has for years placed the location of man's nursery much farther east, in the Siwalik hills of northern India, near Simla, or in the geologically submerged area toward the southeast or in Java where the earliest subhuman fossil, which has been named Pithecanthropus, was found.

Henry Fairfield Osborn, foremost American authority on fossils, thinks Mongolia offers the most fruitful field of research for Eden and at present the American Museum of Natural History has an expedition there seeking clues. Further researches are also being conducted in Java, home of Pithecanthropus. At any moment far-reaching discoveries may be made.

But so far Pithecanthropus, half a million years old, holds the record for antiquity.

Electrical Hygrometer Depends on Selenium

Selenium is a substance which through its peculiar properties, is being used in many unique processes. As most people know, the electrical resistance of this element changes when illuminated by light. Selenium cells are made by winding two wires on a porcelain or mica core. These wires are kept apart by melting selenium between them and permitting it to harden. The cell is then baked and treated in various ways and the resultant operation of the cell depends upon this treatment. The resistance of some cells increases when illuminated, while in others it decreases.

Another interesting property has been discovered, namely, that the resistance of a selenium cell changes with moisture. Immediately it becomes evident that the selenium cell could be used as a hygrometer to detect the amount of water vapor in the air. Experiments at once showed that the instrument indicates humidity with considerable accuracy when precautions are taken to standardize conditions. The selenium cell will readily lend itself to use as a regulator of moisture in the air in buildings. Modern buildings are equipped with apparatus controlling the amount of water vapor in the air, and as the selenium hygrometer is an electrical device it is possible to make the hygrometer automatically control the humidifier. Thus a practical instrument has grown out of a scientific toy.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night, if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water, and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then get fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithium and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is non-toxic, can not injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithium-water drink and belongs in every home because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney fl.ing any time. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

JEALOUS SPOUSE TRIES TO KILL WIFE IN AUTO

Detectives Subdue Man After Rough and Tumble Fight in New York.

New York.—Detectives of the West Thirtieth street station were notified by telephone from Lane Bryant, retailer of women's clothes at 21 West Thirty-eighth street, that one of his employees was afraid to leave the building because her husband was waiting at the rear exit in Thirty-ninth street to kill her.

Detectives Behan and Lowenthal raced down the stairs and jumped into the emergency touring car at the door. Then they speeded up Sixth avenue through the heavy traffic to Thirty-ninth street and turned east toward the deserted exit half way up the block.

Had Gun on Wife.

West bound motors prevented their going the entire way and the detectives jumped from the car and ran on. As they approached a doorway about which a small throng was gathered a woman saw them and screamed:

"There's the man! He's killing her!"

A little way from the door they saw a man with his back turned pushing a young woman backward into a sedan that was parked at the curb. Pressed against her breast he held a magazine revolver. The girl, overcome with fear, uttered no sound.

Lowenthal and Behan struck the assailant with their fists. He dropped the gun as the girl fell backward into the motor and staggered free from her rescuers. And then the crowd saw five minutes of as good a rough and tumble fight as was ever witnessed. The detectives nearly lost their man. But it was suddenly over, his gun was taken and he was down on the pavement with his breath knocked out.

Had Fled From Husband.

No further thought was given to the car or its owner, into which the detectives said they believed he had schemed to push the girl there to shoot her and leave her body. The man and the fainting wife were pushed into the police car and taken to the police station.

When both had been revived the man said his name was William Mantelbaum, twenty-eight, a railroad brakeman. He refused to give his address. The girl gave her name as Helen Mantelbaum, twenty-six, and her residence as 38 West Ninety-seventh street—to which, she added, she had fled from her husband.

The only defense the husband offered was that his wife had treated him badly and that he was insanely jealous over her. He will be arraigned on charges of felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan law. His wife said she would appear against him.

Savings of Lifetime Lost When Cabin Burns

Belvidere, N. J.—Joseph Hull of Uniontown is sixty years old and penniless, the more than $9,000 for which he lived a life of insistent self-denial in ashes which are scattered with the ashes of his log cabin. Joseph Hull is penniless—betrayed by a distrust of banks into hiding nine rolls of bills with $1,000 in each in the walls and under the floor of a tinder-dry shanty.

Hull counted his money the other night. There were the nine rolls of $1,000 each and the tenth final heard, which contained $184. He secreted them again in their hiding places and dozed in his chair by the stove. The draft open, the fire grew, outgrew the stove, leaped up the stovepipe, set fire to the house. Hull awakened just in time to escape with his life.

Every cent for which he had worked a lifetime was lost in the flames.

Hungry Wolves Inade Villages Near Naples

Naples.—Wolves driven from the mountains by the cold weather have invaded villages surrounding Naples. Several of the beasts entered houses on the outskirts of the city, but were beaten off. They then invaded several barns, killing goats. Hunting parties drove the wolves back into the mountains.

Largest Waves.

From a series of observations made of waves of the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans by a French naval officer, it was found that the largest waves occurred in the Indian ocean, where thirty different waves averaged 20 feet, the largest being 37 feet.

Woman Is Bitten to Death by Huge Rats

Walkerton, Ind.—Huge rats, which bit her on the face and neck as she lay helpless in her bed, caused the death of Mrs. Margaret Taylor, aged paralytic, of Walkerton. The wounds in the woman's neck indicated that the rodents were of huge size.

HURL FIRECRACKERS AS JOKE; FATAL TO 2

Deputy Sheriffs Out on Man Hunt Shoot Into Store.

Hazard, Ky.—A firecracker thrown as a joke at Glomawr, a village in this county, resulted in the death of two men and the wounding of a third.

Early in the evening William Smith, a Perry county deputy sheriff, was killed in a duel with Imman Phillips, who was wounded. Phillips, despite his injuries, fled into the mountains. The sheriff's office here was called upon and several deputies, including John Smith, a cousin of the man killed in the duel, trailed Phillips some distance and finally reached Glomawr.

The possemen, all armed, were expecting an attack, and suddenly a report was heard. A firecracker had been thrown. It is believed, from a small store operated by Jerry Dunn.

The deputy sheriffs, thinking they were fired upon, promptly sent a volley into the little store. When no answering shots came, the possemen investigated, finding J. D. Mathews and a man named Hayes dead and Dunn, the proprietor of the store, wounded.

Buys Jail for Chickens to Foil His Neighbors

Belport, L. I.—The state prison commission some time ago condemned the jail at Belport, a steel-lined frame building, so it was advertised for sale, the community deciding to use the "house" at Patchogue until it could afford a new one. In Belport lives Clarence Ward, negro, who keeps chickens—keeps them, that is, except when persons with more acquisitive instinct than moral restraint abstract them by night. Ward has tried all sorts of things to overcome that fowl trait in some of his neighbors, but the chickens have kept on disappearing.

Now it chances that some constable with literary leanings had inscribed over the jail door, "He who enters here leaves hope behind." That, it seemed to Ward, might be made strikingly true if that jail were his—true for the chickens because they would never emerge except to be eaten, and true for any marauder because the building was capable of being made a trap for intruders. So Ward bought the jail for $50 and now it is a hen coop.

Robberies Force Family to Seek New Residence

New York.—Isaac M. Oshinsky, cloak manufacturer at 28 West Twenty-seventh street, has returned to his home, 5403 Fifteenth street, Brooklyn, with his family. The Oshinskys moved to the Belvedere hotel in Manhattan after their home was robbed about ten days ago and a quantity of jewelry taken. The reason for moving was that the robbery was the fifth one in the Oshinsky home since August. The loot taken in these robberies exceeded $20,000.

When the family moved out three private detectives moved in. Nothing happened for two nights. The last night the detectives caught a man, they said, in the act of breaking into the house. He said he was Hans Gehrahn, a resident of a Bowery lodging house. The detectives said he had a fountain pen in his pocket that had previously been taken from the Oshinsky house.

Veteran Woman Sleuth Taken as Shoplifter

Boston.—After having spent more than twenty years of her life hunting shoplifters in the capacity of store detective, Mrs. Maude Murray of Cambridge turned and became one of the hunted.

According to her own story she has for the past year and a half taken advantage of her intimate knowledge of local stores and personnel and has been pilfering goods. She blames the work she has been in for her predicament.

"I just can't explain," she said, "but an irresistible desire to take things comes over me. Thinking about stealing so much in my work is to blame."

A stenographer she did not know caught her stealing in a downtown store and promptly brought about her arrest, at which she wept bitterly. Later in the day she was arraigned and held for trial. It is likely that she will be sent to the Psychopathic hospital for observation.

Former Waterboy Now Official of Railroad

Birmingham, Ala.—William E. Smith, once a construction gang waterboy, has been named assistant general manager of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, according to announcement made here recently. Mr. Smith is superintendent of the North and South Alabama and Mineral divisions of the road. He succeeds Thomas E. Brooks, who was named general manager, following the death of H. M. Starka.

Buick Body Construction

In constructing its open car bodies, Buick uses bolts in fastening the metal braces to the wood, instead of ordinary screws. These bolts passing completely through the wooden frame prevent joints from loosening under driving strains. A more than usual number of bolts secure the Buick body to the chassis, holding it rigidly in position and entirely eliminating all squeaks and rattles.

KENTUCKIAN COLLECTS BILLIONS FOR UNCLE SAM

HON. MCKENZIE MOSS OF Kentucky, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury

Mr. Moss, as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, collects practically every dollar that comes into the United States Treasury. He has complete charge of the Customs and Internal Revenue Bureaus of the Treasury Department, through which the Government procures its income. Mr. Moss did his job so well, last year, that he collected much more than was needed for the operation of the Government, resulting in a surplus of $300,000,000. It was this surplus that made it possible for Secretary Mellon to submit to Congress his plan for tax reduction, which has met with nation-wide approval. With the adoption of the legislation, Mr. Moss will have his duties considerably lightened. He is one of the leading Republicans of the Blue Grass State.

ODD TIMEPIECES USED BY ANCIENTS

Egyptians Had Water-Clock and Greeks Used Sundial.

Washington.—A 24-hour day, beginning at midnight, is so universally accepted by landmen that the recent announcement that the system would be extended to ships, which now begin their day at noon, was surprising.

"However, land time and ship time are only two of a number of ways which men have marked the fleeting moments, and various other ways survive even now," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Alfred the Great had wax candles, 12 inches long, marked in notches to tell off the four hours they burned. He later covered them with thin white horn, lantern-fashion, to protect them from drafts, but he was far behind his times in comparison with other portions of the world, and his time-piece was crude in the extreme compared with other inventions before 900 A. D.

Ancient Sundials.

"Primitive peoples, before the dawn of history, fixed a pole or stick in the ground and drew a line about it representing the course of the shadow it cast from sunrise to sunset. We may suppose that when Mr. Caveman started out in the morning on a foraging expedition, he led Mrs. Caveman out and notched the shadow-line to show her when she could expect him home. Some of his fellow-mortals in other parts of the world in the same stage of development made a kind of heap or grass rope which they dampened and knotted in regular spaces. When this was lighted, the slowly and regularly creeping spark told off the flight of time. It is said that these primitive time-markers are used in parts of China, Korea.

"Though some students believe that the early Japanese had no method of reckoning time, others claim that primitive Japanese and Chinese used almost the same thing as the rope, though their device more nearly resembled a wick which had been so treated that it snickered out the hours. One of these ancient wicks is now in a museum in Paris.

"Even before 2800 B. C. the sparkling sands of the Egyptian desert had made a clock of them who had begun to reckon time by the cycles of the planets. No one knows when they first dawned the sun from sun to sun into 24 parts, but the hours were first divided into minutes, but Ptolemy adopted the method in the second century and gave it to his world.

A Time "Sinkers."

"Some of the Malays even today use a crude apparatus for measuring time which has probably been in vogue in the Far East for almost 5,000 years. It is called the water clock and is simply a small dish or round bowl with a small hole in the bottom. When this is placed in a tub of water it gradually becomes full and sinks, which always happens in the same period of time. On the Malay Juncos it is the customary thing to see a coconut shell floating in a bowl of water to tell off the time away from the home port.

"The ancient Egyptians knew the water-clock, too, and the British museum possesses one inscribed with the name of Alexander the Great.

"The Greeks claimed that the sundial was invented by a pupil of Thales of Miletus, but the great sundial of Akhet was mentioned in the Bible when God promised the sick Hezekiah to deliver his city out of the hands of the king of Assyria. Historians have fixed this date as being about 713 B. C.

"From Greece the sundial made its way to Rome, the first one being set up in the temple of Quirinus. Roman citizens evidently suffered from that universal failing of orators, for in 61 B. C. Pompey the Great set up in the forum a valuable water-clock which he publicly announced was to limit the long-windedness of speakers.

Sand-Glass Still Used.

"No one knows how old the sand-glass is. It may have been suggested by the water-clock and probably originated in one of the desert countries—Egypt or Babylonia—where water was at a premium. We cannot tell exactly of what substances they were made, but they were shown on Greek sculpture before the Christian era. The sand-glass or water-glass has two uses all its own at the present time—for boiling eggs, and in the English house of commons to time the bells that ring to notify members that a division is at hand.

"Water-clocks and sundials reached high perfection and elaborateness during the Ninth century, the masterpieces exchanged by Haroun, al Rashid and Charlemagne being two of the most famous of history. The first portable astrolabe arrived from Arabia about 700 A. D. and from that time clocks of various kinds and classes made their appearance until Peter Lightfoot in 1335 made the earliest real clock worthy of our modern definition. This old hand-maiden of Father Time still is going in the Science museum at South Kensington.

"The wrist watch is usually considered a modern development of the watch and clock industry, but Queen Elizabeth wore the first one about the same time she introduced silk stockings.

Champion Oyster Opener Has Never Found a Pearl

New York.—John Anderson, seventy-five years of age, who has been opening oysters for the past 60 years, has opened over 66,000,000 oysters. John has been looking for pearls since he began opening oysters at the age of fifteen, and has not found a pearl to date. He is proud of being the record-holding oyster shucker. One time he shucked 9,230 oysters in nine hours, making 17 oysters a minute. No one else in the world has done that well, perhaps no one would want to.

Students Discover Gold While Mining in Alaska

Fairbanks, Alaska.—A tunnel begun merely to demonstrate practical underground mining to students of the School of Mines here may turn out to be a commercial gold mine that will add eventually to the resources of the college, and may even sustain it.

The workings have cut a formation giving every evidence of being a lode, and the professor of mining engineering has found the excellent unexpectably valuable in demonstrating scientific prospecting. As yet the gold found has been of nominal value, but the region has geological features, making the discovery most promising, experts say.

Fairbanks was the scene of rich placer workings in years gone by, and in adjacent districts small rich lodes discovered recently have been paying their owners good returns.

The School of Mines and Agricultural College of Fairbanks boasts that it not only is the farthest north college, but has the oldest freshman. He is Territorial Representative E. W. Keys, aged sixty-one, who with his thirty-year-old son as a classmate, is studying scientific mining. For the elder Mr. Keys contrasts to most freshmen, is also an instructor. He teaches rudimentary placer mining.

The college, starting with six students a year ago, now has sixty. The subjects taught include geodesy, mining, agriculture, business and administration, geology, general science, home economics, engineering and metallurgy.

Turtles of Australia to Be Made Into Soup

Sydney, N. S. W.—A dark day has dawned for the thousands of turtles that waddle about the beaches of the northwest coast of Australia. At Rockingham a factory has been built to convert them into soup.

The supply of turtles is said to be inexhaustible. The factory has a sea frontage, and there a large pool has been inclosed. In this the turtles swim lazily, in ignorance of the steaming pots awaiting them not far away. The factory has been established by a Glasgow firm, which has promised to make democratic the lordly turtle. Today a plate of this delicacy in London costs about two guineas.

Sleeping Man Attacked in Cabin by Wildcat

Suffern, N. Y.—Larry Dea, night watchman for the new Lake Palisades Interstate park at Johnsonstown, was aroused from sleep at his cabin by a wildcat which was attacking him with its chisel-like teeth. Tom Carlin came to Dea's assistance with a bullet and killed the animal.

In the struggle Dea had his trousers torn to shreds and received several bad scratches on hands and body. The cat weighed 18 pounds and was 35 inches in length.

Hod Carrier Purchases House Worth $30,000

New York.—John Tantillo, hod carrier, of Christie street, "laid down his hod" the other day for the first time in thirty years to celebrate. The occasion for the celebration was that John had become the owner of the five-story tenement house at 87 East Tenth street, valued at $30,000. He put his savings into the house, which is opposite Tompkins park. He said that being a landlord would not in any way cause him to give up his old job. Really, he believed, is one of the best investments. Carrying bricks these days is a lucrative job. It has been for five years and there seems to be no end to it in sight.

"The Longest Tunnel In The World" Built With Central Hudson Electric Service

The daily papers of New York City, as well as the newspapers of the Central Hudson Communities, have published interesting accounts of the formal opening on Saturday, February 9th, 1924, of the great SHANDAKEN TUNNEL that has been built to carry the pure mountain water from the Gilboa Reservoir on the Schoharie River, through 16 miles of tunnel (the longest tunnel in the world) under the Catskill mountains for delivery through the Ashokan Reservoir and the great aqueduct system to the City of New York, a distance of over 150 miles.

The people of the Central Hudson Valley will be interested to learn that this Tunnel was built entirely with electric power furnished from the "Central Hudson System." The contract for electric service involved the financing of a special transmission line over 50 miles long from the Valley's super-power line, over which for 4 years 4,000 horse-power of energy has been maintained for use night and day.

This energy has enabled the contractors to use the most up-to-date electrically operated tools and machinery in the roughest and wildest parts of the Catskill Mountains, through all seasons and weather, good and bad, for drilling, hauling, hoisting, pumping air supply, lighting and for every purpose for which power can be used.

That the Tunnel was completed a year ahead of schedule is due to this modern agency — ELECTRICITY — for it seems that by no other means could the vast quantities of material and work be done in the space of 4 years.

Some idea of the magnitude of the work performed by the power supplied from the "CENTRAL HUDSON SYSTEM" may be given by the figures which have been published as follows:

1,000,000 Tons of rock blasted out deep in the Mountains. Hoisted to the surface and hauled, all by electric power.

300,000 Drill Holes used to drill 3,000,000 feet in solid rock.

20 Miles of Train loaded with cement used in the work, mixed and applied by electricity.

It is estimated that 2 years more will be required to complete the work on the Gilboa Dam.

The engineer of the Board of Water Supply of the City of New York, in his last Annual Report, comments on the electric service of the Central Hudson System, as follows:

"The power-service was very satisfactory"

Wife Is Sea Captain; Husband First Mate

Mrs. Jennie E. Crocker of Saugus, Mass., who says she is the only woman licensed captain of an ocean-going sailing vessel in the world, brought her four-masted schooner Ruth Martin into a Perth Amboy drydock recently for repairs.

On board as first mate was the shipper's husband, Nelson A. Crocker. Mrs. Crocker said she also is the only woman with a first mate's license for ocean-going steamships. She passed the examination for the sailing vessel captain's license December 17 last. The schooner piles between Boston and Port St. George, Fla.

Mrs. Crocker is about thirty, slim with blue eyes and red hair. She was dressed smartly.

Thief Takes Scientific Data Sent to Museum

A scientific collection of data bearing on prehistoric man has been stolen from a box shipped from Europe through the port of New York, Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, anthropologist of the New National museum, Smithsonian Institution, has reported to government officials at Washington.

The scientist last summer collected 125 photographs of fossil bone deposits from central Europe and various sources from England, Germany, France, Australia and Croatia, which he said "would be worthless to any one not versed in anthropology," and shipped them in a box, which, when opened, contained only rocks and gravel.

Smith Orders Law Enforced

troop over is the State Constabulary. I am the least bit afraid that some of our Washington officials, for some reason that I am unable to understand, believe that they should every so often criticize enforcement in our state. One such criticism is attributed to Mr. Haynes, chief federal prohibition enforcement agent, who was quoted in a recent article in a newspaper as saying, "The State Constabulary had not given their attention to running on the Canadian border." It is alleged in the newspaper article that this was corroborated by a James E. Jones, his assistant, who also had something to say about a lack of cooperation by the police department of the city of New York. The representatives of that city are here and can speak for themselves. But speaking for the State Constabulary, I emphatically deny that statement and challenge its truth.

The statement was predicated on the fact that the repeal of the state act led to a lessening of the activity of the state police. The following are the facts so far as enforcement on the Canadian border is concerned:

After—Arrests, 124; Cars, 99; Value, $41,360.00; Investigations, 91.

There is a phase in this situation that I deem worthy of mention at this time and that is that vigorous enforcement after all is a matter for the direct representatives of the people in the various localities. No sheriff or other peace official standing by himself can be expected to do much with the enforcement of the Volstead act. Under our laws he must be supported with sufficient assistants or deputies, and that can only be secured by an adequate appropriation of money through the locally elected authorities who represent the people themselves. I mention this for the purpose of bringing back to the different communities of the state the suggestion that in the first instance responsibility for vigorous enforcement lies with themselves.

Figures submitted to me indicate that the counties of the state lying close to the sources of supply of liquor have made very little attempt at enforcement.

For instance, in 1921, in Clinton county, there were 10 deputy sheriffs, and today there are 16. In 1920, the various towns of Clinton county had 58 constables; in 1924 they have 52.

In 1920, Franklin county had 24 deputy sheriffs; in 1923, there were 22, and according to the records of the comptroller's office so far in 1924 only 16 have been appointed. In 1920, the various towns in Franklin county had 48 constables; today they have 42.

In 1920, St. Lawrence county had 28 deputy sheriffs, and in 1924 there are 33. In 1920, St. Lawrence county had 194 constables; in 1924 it has 111.

In 1921, Jefferson county had 47 deputy sheriffs, and so far this year only 26 have been appointed. In 1920, Jefferson county had 84 constables; today it has 98.

In 1920, Nassau county had 4 deputy sheriffs, and in 1924, they have 15. In 1920, Nassau county in the different towns had 12 constables; in 1924, they have the same number.

In 1920, Suffolk county had 4 deputy sheriffs and this year it has 4. In 1920, Suffolk county had 43 constables in the various towns; today it has only 45.

Obviously this force is inadequate to cope with violations of the Volstead act. These counties are selected because four of them lie along the Canadian border, and the other two have a great many miles of shoreline. No power to remedy this condition rests any place except in the locally elected officials, to wit: the County Board of Supervisors as far as sheriffs are concerned and the Town Boards as far as constables are concerned.

Some of our counties talk "dry" but do not act that way because they seem to be unwilling to make the necessary appropriations for proper and adequate enforcement. Many of them, to cover up their own sins of omission, engage in the well-known political pastime of passing the buck by seeking more law. Let me say as emphatically as I can that we have all the law we need. No state enactment or no local ordinance could be more sacred to us as a law than an act of congress constituting an amendment to the constitution of the United States. The thing to do is to enforce it and stop talking about it for political effect.

In conclusion, I call upon all the law enforcement officials of the state here gathered in conference, to coordinate their forces with the federal forces for law enforcement. I further call upon the press to support prohibition law enforcement, and I ask them to stress law observance and I ask them to treat the enforcement program commensurate with the gravity of lawlessness. I call upon district attorneys to confer with other state enforcement officials pledging support with whatever facility they have at hand. I ask cooperation between all state enforcement agencies with the national authorities, and finally I ask all law enforcement officials to adopt whatever means they possibly can within the law, to cause lawless citizens and aliens to respect the majesty and sanctity of the law and to compel respect for the various agencies enforcing it.

Palmer Canfield, Jr., of Kingston, prohibition director for the state, at whose request the conference was called, addressed the assembly of law officers in the crowded assembly chamber. There were present nearly 200 city and village officials and police, sheriffs, district attorneys and state troopers.

Mr. Canfield said:

We are here to discuss and consider the problem of law enforcement particularly in its relationship to the National Prohibition Act. This state is not delivered from such trouble because it has no supporting law. This law has life here as elsewhere. It officials sworn to enforce the law play truant as to this law. It will sleep and lawlessness will thrive and increase.

All laws can be enforced. This law can be enforced. Some say that there should be repeal or modification. This is not your function. It is not my concern. It is not the jurors in the trial of prohibition state's mission. It is the province of Congress. It is the business of the people to put Congress into office. Therefore, the people can, and should, speak if the people choose to speak, over 50 per cent of these cases must be remembered that any change in the law must be consistent with the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution. There have been three elections of Congress since the adoption of the original proposition. The law still remains upon the statute book as written. The only one amendment has strengthened it. It is within the right of anyone to advocate the repeal or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment or any consistent and legal modification of the National Prohibition Act. No official or citizen can fairly expect or object to such advocacy by others who honestly believe in same as a matter of principle.

Yet there is no discretion as to enforcement. No option is present. It is not for you and me as officials to repudiate it or reject it. It is as much the law of the State of New York as the state criminal and penal codes or any state law. The United States Supreme Court has said that "The laws of the United States are the laws of the several states." It comes within the oath of every official. It cannot be cast overboard and divorced from that oath. It is the law of the land, and the oath of you and me is to enforce the law. If it lacks public sentiment and is unreasonably drastic in any respect, the best weapon for those who so allege, is to enforce it honestly, courageously, intelligently and effectively. General Grant said in his inaugural address, "I know of no method to secure the repeal of bad or obnoxious laws so effective as their stringent execution."

So it is not for us to blow hot and cold or to play fast and loose with the law because some may not like it. All authority originates in the will of the majority. The rights of all are confined within such limits. The will of the majority predominates in the end and subjects the actions of public officers to its own will. The exercise of discretion is followed by abuse and abuse. One of our politicians said, "No law can possibly move the convenience of every one, and we must be satisfied if it be beneficial on the whole and to the majority."

This law must be enforced or all laws pass into dissolution. There have been many extravagant and exaggerated criticisms directed against it. It is not perfect nor is it perfectly enforced, but it is the law. If the stone of prohibition enforcement laxity is cast into the waters of citizenry, there will be many ripples or waves of lawlessness.

We must have vision to look far ahead, but we must treat with the exigencies of present conditions. Our laws are seriously menaced by social trespassing. There should be a concerted plan to throttle it. Law is weak if not enforced. All laws are strong if enforced. So when officials serve the law they serve the people.

The federal government appreciates such co-operation and aid that have been given it by officials and citizens of this state. It is imperative that all other officials become actively cooperative. I have a realization of the difficulties that confront all of us but the supremacy of the law must be reclaimed. It is paramount to the question of prohibition.

I realize that in New York city the federal judicial machinery cannot properly least the double burden of federal and police cases. It is like eliminating the elevated and fire cars and trying to load all the people upon the subway. I appreciate the inconvenience at times for peace and police officers upstate to appear in the United States courts, yet it is a serious duty and obligation resting upon them.

It is the duty of the federal government primarily to enforce the National Prohibition Act in respect to smuggling constituting international traffic, and as to interstate traffic and cases, and in guarding liquor warehouses, alcohol plants and de-alcoholizing plants, and in protecting sources of supply. It is primarily the duty of the municipal, county and state police and peace officers to enforce it as to local cases within their respective jurisdictions. The federal government with less than one per cent, of the law enforcing forces within this state, cannot enforce the law effectively alone. The federal government can be the hub of the wheel of law enforcement, but you must be the spokes and the rim to complete the circle of cooperation. The public and the press will sustain and support earnest and sincere efforts to enforce this law upon the part of any officials whose minds are attuned right to the constitution and to American principles and ideals. So in basing our action here with the desire of gathering our greatest forces and strength, the National Government must look to you to assume your duty as to local and police cases. I know that you will respond to this obligation when it is pointed out to you. The Federal Government will cooperate to the maximum possible extent.

In the first place no official can succeed in the enforcement of any law unless he possesses an abiding faith in the strength of law, an enduring courage to use that strength, and a sustaining belief that the people will back any conscientious effort for law enforcement. So while it is not directly germane to our discussion, I desire to call your attention to some facts and statements that may tend to clear the atmosphere somewhat as to the present status of the National Prohibition Act. It does not require any mental capacity for fair and proper analysis, nor a high degree of discriminatory judgment for one side of any problem or issue to condemn, criticize or denounce in general terms and phrases the other side of the question or those supporting it. Misguided fanaticism or blind radicalism are standstill vehicles. Facts and right will every carry the victory.

National prohibition is still young—very young. Yet substantial progress has been made by the federal government with the cooperation of state, county and municipal officials. The government is getting more favorable consideration each year from the trial of prohibition cases. There were nearly 50,000 cases. It is the business of the people to put Congress into office. Therefore, the people can, and should, speak if the people choose to speak, over 50 per cent of these cases must be remembered that any change in the law must be consistent with the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution. There have been three elections of Congress since the adoption of the original proposition. The law still remains upon the statute book as written. The only one amendment has strengthened it. It is within the right of anyone to advocate the repeal or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment or any consistent and legal modification of the National Prohibition Act. No official or citizen can fairly expect or object to such advocacy by others who honestly believe in same as a matter of principle.

One of the important duties of the federal government is to regulate the withdrawals of liquors by permittees for medical and other non-beverage purposes. In my department covering this state there are over 25,000 permittees representing manufacturers of medicine and vinegar, wholesale and retail druggists, physicians, dentists, veterinarians, branch distilleries and wineries, exporters, importers and other lawfully recognized dealers. Improved and strengthened regulations and exercise of greater care have resulted in bringing down withdrawals of liquors for such purposes to a legitimate basis. At the present time the withdrawals of distilled spirits in the country is only about six per cent of the corresponding withdrawals for the year 1919.

A decrease from over 37,000,000 gallons for 1919 to about 1,750,000 for the last fiscal year. This in itself is a splendid achievement of the federal prohibition department. The importance of it from the standpoint of law enforcement can be understood when I call your attention to the fact that excess withdrawals beyond legitimate trade needs for non-beverage purposes naturally results in the probability of diversion. The government has also practically eliminated all withdrawals upon forged papers. It is negotiating treaties with Great Britain and Canada that will be very helpful to minimize if not eliminate smuggling by land and water. It is preparing to strengthen the coast guard to such an extent that smuggling by water will be unsafe and unprofitable if not almost impossible. It is about to issue regulations that will protect the legitimate dealer or user of denatured alcohol but will make it more difficult for the potential illegitimate dealer or user to divert the alcohol to form the basis for synthetic liquors. The federal government has practically closed the door to the diversion of real liquor. It is succeeding in gradually closing up the big leaks and the larger sources of supply of the semi-poisonous, redistilled denatured alcohol liquor.

I quote from the message of President Coolidge to Congress:

"The prohibition amendment to the Constitution requires the congress and the president to provide adequate laws to prevent its violation. It is my duty to enforce such laws. For that purpose a treaty is being negotiated with Great Britain, with respect to the right of search of hovering vessels.

"To prevent smuggling, the Coast Guard should be greatly strengthened, and a supply of swift powered boats should be provided. The major sources of production should be rigidly regulated, and every effort should be made to suppress interstate traffic. With this action on the part of the national government, and the cooperation which is usually rendered by municipal and state authorities, prohibition should be made effective."

"Free government has no greater menace than disrespect for authority and continual violation of law. It is the duty of a citizen not only to observe the law but to let it be known that he is opposed to its violation."

We are continually met with the general statement that there is as much liquor being consumed today as prior to national prohibition. The fact speaks audibly. Over 133,000,000 gallons of hard liquor were withdrawn each year from bonded warehouses for consumption prior to federal prohibition. The total amount withdrawn now for non-beverage purpose is not much more than one per cent of such amount. Assuming that this amount, principally used by hospitals and sold by retail druggists upon physicians' prescriptions, is all diverted to beverage purposes. Add to this the smuggled liquors and the synthetic liquors manufactured illegally, and the total based upon super-elastic estimates calculated from figures cannot exceed ten per cent of such pre-prohibition withdrawals. Likewise, during this last year the illegal coverages of one-half of one per cent now manufactured amounted to about fifteen per cent of the total now being each year prior to national prohibition.

There have been many comparisons as to arrests for public intoxication especially in reference to New York city. In 1915, the year prior to our entry in the war, the official figures given the state were 17,950 such arrests; in 1923 there were 9,111 arrests. It must be admitted that the terrible character of the liquor being illegally sold today has a far greater power to produce intoxication than bona fide liquor.

The analyses of over 20,000 samples by the Government chemical bureau in New York city, during the latter part of last year, show that less than one per cent of all the liquor sold illegally is real liquor. The remainder is a mixture of liquor and alcohol or redistilled specially denatured alcohol that is doctored, flavored and colored and all of which is very unwholesome and deleterious and health-breaking concoctions. You will find, upon careful examination and review, that the extent of public intoxication today is usually due more to the decreased quantity of liquor consumed as a beverage. I quote from an editorial in one of the leading New York city papers a few weeks ago which needs no comment.

"While it (the Mullan-Gage law) was in force, the estimated number of liquor shops of one kind or another sank from 12,000 to about 2,000. Any habitual observer of city thoroughfares and streets, once rich in boozing dens, notices month by month their gradual disappearance. Dingly and deserted saloons appear here and there. From the sidewalks disconsolate and bored barkeepers frown at changed world. Only an introduced and certified client can buy the forbidden drink. More adventurous gin mills are merely qualifying for the fatal 'padlock.' The open saloon is 'gone'."

It is not my purpose to call your attention to the many tributes paid to prohibition by large industrial and manufacturing leaders and employers, builders of apartment houses and homes, well known economists and educators, bankers and financiers, and others, based upon the practical results with the doubling of savings deposits, almost a tripling of national bank deposits, increased life insurance, more home building and lower death rate. Prohibition is not entitled to the entire credit for this favorable condition but it must be conceded that it is a contributing cause.

I have referred to these matters for a particular reason. It is necessary for all of us to believe that the National Prohibition Act should be enforced and can be enforced before we can have the proper mental and moral spirit and strength to enforce it. It is naturally desirable for you to know that the Federal Government is earnestly trying to assume its part of the responsibility. Yet, the Federal Government cannot police every city, town and village in this state or in the country, nor was it intended that it should do so. The local officials and the citizens would not want it done. They would contest the great burden of taxation such a course would cause. There are about 55,000 police and peace officers in the state. Less than one per cent of them are Federal Prohibition Agents, as I have stated. The time of a large number of these agents must be used in inspecting the thousands of permittees subject to inspection. The active operation of the other 99 per cent peace officers, consisting of state, county and municipal enforcement officers, is required. It is not anticipated that such officers will be expected to devote their efforts almost exclusively or even primarily to the enforcement of the National Prohibition Act. It is not expected that additional officers will be appointed for this particular purpose. Your help is earnestly urged and requested to have present officers place the prohibition law in the same category and upon the same plane as other laws and give the same attention and consideration to its enforcement as are given to laws, state or federal, that are violated locally.

The national prohibition act specifically provides that certain provisions of the federal revised statutes are made applicable in its enforcement. Besides the United States courts and judges and commissioners, all justices of the supreme court, county judges, city judges and justices having criminal jurisdiction, are given authority to have offenders arrested and to accept bail or to hear before a United States commissioner or for trial before the United States district court. In such case the state or local officer may turn the defendant over to federal agents or take them before the United States commissioner where they must appear as witnesses. It is also required that they make a return to the clerk of the United States court, with copies of the process and papers, together with any bonds given. If there is no United States commissioner accessible, the matter should be taken up with the United States attorney of the district to petition the United States court to make ad-

PLOT THAT TURNED OUT ALL RIGHT

By DUFORD JENNE

Both Alice confined to her room and a sprained ankle, looked sadly at her friend.

"Of all the unluckiest plots, to be up on the very night of my marriage!—and that—be-utiful—"

"she moaned, pointed to the dress that represented the dress of a lady of Queen Anne's time.

"Well, I'll stay with you, Beth," Patricia answered, "and I guess we can stir up some fun together right here."

Beth's eyes suddenly widened and a new interest crept into her face. "Now, you won't Patricia Hilden! I have a bright idea—oh, very bright! There is my dress. You just happened to drop in on your way East now, you wear my dress—and go in your place. And, oh, mischief! I forgot to tell you that Stanley—"

Stanley Patricia sat up with a sharp interest.

"Yes, my dear I asked him to come for the ball. I met him at your home last summer, you know, and I was right in love with him, and father heard that he was in the city on a business trip so I asked him to come; and he said he would, although he might be late."

"Now here's the plot! Let's try him out. You are a clever mimic. You can dress, make believe you are and see what happens. I'll bet he'll strike up a wild flirtation with the girl he thinks is—"

"Beth, I think of it—flirting with the girl I'm to marry and thinking it was some one else all the time. I've had an idea he could make love with me."

"Patricia's cheeks flushed. "Perhaps I know something about that, Betty." "A—yes, perhaps you do. But I try him. No one is to know who is other is you know, if it can possibly be prevented. And say, Stanley always gets jokes on others, let's make him up."

"The black eyes of her friend twinkled. It would be good fun just to see that Stanley would do, and they had a chance to pay him back for the jokes of his in which they had won the victims. So Patricia reasoned and she stated to Beth.

Patricia jumped up, and soon she was transformed into the graceful lady long ago.

"You will do!" Beth exclaimed.

"So it came about that after Beth had seen to it that word was spread the effect that she would finally appear after all, Patricia found her in the evening eager to play.

"Safe behind her disguise, skilful in impersonating others she played her part in a way she played it too well, she found some of the gallants better than she was Betty.

"When at 10 o'clock she suddenly in Patricia's voice beside her, she looked into the masked face of a stranger. For a moment she almost called her true identity, so glad she to know he was near. She was on her way to his home when she stopped and just dropped in Betty—"

"Beth said to say."

"But don't be too sure! How do you know I am Betty?" she protested.

"A person can't hide this mannerisms and I take some in seeing through people!"

"That so?" she retorted. "Well, are—"

"At that moment the music struck up, drawing her into the dance. Her mood was joy once more to be in the arms of the close friend. She had used that the close friend way he knew Patricia was his way for her; now he thought he was dancing Betty. Was that the way he held a attractive girl?"

"Long and supple with an accurate feeling for time he was a good dancer, the pleasure was spoiled for her by a sudden thought. Then, when the music ended and he led her to a shadowy corner of the ballroom, and laid his hand caressingly on hers, she was almost angry.

He began to talk in the fascinating way he had often talked to her as Patricia.

He was flirting outrageously, she realized, and thinking Betty was with him. Patricia's anger gave way to a dismal sense of pain. If she, Patricia, had not happened to get into the plot, he would have carried on with Betty the same way. Then came the colder thought—after she became his wife, would she be enough? Would he find change and excitement in flirtations with others?

For a moment she was tempted to reveal her identity, but the music began and she was hurried into the dance by a new partner.

Afterward he sought her, but she evaded him, and in the end, just before the unmasking, she fled to her room and threw herself on the bed, all the music and happiness gone from her soul. The plot had indeed turned into a dark thing.

But she sat up shortly. "Pat, don't be a fool! It's better to find out what he is now than later—before you have given him everything to throw away!" she advised herself.

She heard the guests depart, heard Betty's name called, then earnest conversation, then laughter, then gradually silence.

A soft knock sounded on her door.

She opened it and looked into Stanley's face.

"Hello, sweetheart. Betty's dad wants us to stay over, and we're going to have a little luncheon downstairs. Won't you come down?"

"No, I won't, Stanley Marks!" Then while the tears trickled down her hot cheeks she told him the story, and she ended: "I will not marry a man who flirts with every pretty face—and does it so beautifully, too!" she sobbed.

He drew her out into the hall, folded her in his strong arms in spite of her struggles, kissed her and then whispered:

"Honey, I knew who you were. Betty squealed and put me wise—told me of the plot. I came late, you know—said she thought it was a shame to have you and me here all evening and not know the other was here. But, of course, I couldn't let you get away with a joke on me! So I made believe I thought you were Betty!"

"Then you don't—"

"He caught her meaning. "Little girl, my love is yours and yours alone, and the tender things I say and the kiss I give you are yours and yours alone, and will be yours till death. Don't you believe me?"

Her head went against the white cross of the crucifix on his breast and she nodded vigorously.

How Tanks Were Named

Did you ever wonder how the big lumbering war machines called "tanks," the iron monsters which helped turn the tide of victory toward the allies, got their names?

One of the workmen in a plant in Sussex, England, where the fighting machines were being manufactured was asked one day by a British general what he thought the fighters looked like. He replied: "I don't know what they look like, but they look about as much unlike a tank of mine as anything I can think of."

How Pails Are Made

Paper water buckets that are used by railroads are usually made from wood fiber reduced to a pulp mixed with a suitable binder which is a water resistant glue and molded to proper shape. Such buckets are also sometimes made from paper mache which is composed of old papers macerated to pulp and molded in the manner described.

Okapi a Rare Animal

The "okapi," to obtain a specimen of which an American expedition is now on its way to Africa is a very rare animal first discovered in Uganda by the explorer Sir Harry Johnston. The animal is about the size of a large ox. The coloration is perhaps unique among animals. The body is of a reddish color, the hair is short and the appearance of the hide is extremely glossy. The hind quarters and legs are of a cream color and striped like those of the zebra.

A century ago it was predominantly an agricultural region, but by the time of the World War it had probably passed all non-Prussian states save Saxony in industry and

Snow Stopped
Ice Harvesting

The heavy fall of snow Tuesday night and Wednesday morning put a stop to the ice harvest on the Hudson river for the time being. All day Wednesday and today the Knickerbocker Ice Company had gangs of men and snowplows scraping the snow from the ice fields at Esopus, Flatbush and East Kingston. The harvesting of the crop is expected to be resumed Friday morning, weather conditions permitting.

Throughout the city the street department is busy removing the piles of snow from the streets, and the snowstorm has given work to a number of unemployed men.

The ferry Transport is still running between this city and Rhinecliff. The tug Rob is assisting in keeping the channel across the river open.

CURRENT OFFERINGS
AT THE THEATERS

At the Keeney Theater tonight will be shown, "Tiger Rose." This feature picture will be shown for the balance of the week. Patterned after the Belasco play that scored a successful run on Broadway, the photoplay presents a combination that will come up to the standard of other productions. The story is set in the far northwest, where men and wild beasts rove at large, killing and being killed by instincts of hunger fear and love. The picture is said to be replete with human interest.

A new vaudeville bill will be shown at tonight's performances at the Opera House. The same bill will be staged for the remainder of the week. "Bright Lights of Broadway," one of the latest B. F. Ziedman productions will be the feature picture. The story opens in the quiet little town of Green Vale in the upper part of New York state, shortly after the locale is changed to Broadway and it is against this colorful background that the major portion of the tale transpires.

At the Auditorium today is "The Kingdom Within," a Victor Schertzinger production, featuring Russell Simpson, Pauline Starke and Gaston Glass. It is a love story.

Today starts an entire new show at the Orpheum. The vaudeville changes, six acts on the bill, including Daily and Healey, two Kernels from the Nut Army in a comedy of errors, "April Showers" is the picture. April showers bring May flowers. A shower of trouble came into the lives of two Irish sweethearts in this tale of laughter and tears—but after the shower came the sunshine.

WANT ADSBus Owner Wins
a Highland Case

Supreme Court Justice Joseph Moerschauer has handed down a decision dismissing the motion for an injunction brought by the New Paltz, Highland and Poughkeepsie Traction Company against Albany Elliott, the owner of the bus line at Highland, which carries pupils to and from the New Paltz Normal School. The trolley company through its attorney brought the action against Mr. Elliott and Fred Wilklow, trustee of School District No. 5 and Mrs. Wells Weaver, trustee of school district No. 7. It was alleged that the bus line was a common carrier and that the competition had greatly injured the finances of the road.

Justice Moerschauer's decision is as follows: "The employees of the defendant Elliott did upon two or three occasions carry persons without charge thereof and without the knowledge of the defendant Elliott. On the claims of the plaintiff the proof is insufficient to sustain the allegations of the complaint. If Elliott was acting as a common carrier when he transported the school children under the contract with the trustees of the school districts Numbers 5 and 7 then the plaintiff's cause of action is clearly established by the proof. In performing this contract I do not believe he can be classed as a 'common carrier.' I find for the defendant without costs."

Gotham Intellectuals
Saturated With Ego

"You don't know me? I am surprised. Why, I have had two intellectual dramas produced on Broadway," said the first guest to arrive at a private dinner the other day in a New York bachelor apartment to one of the late comers.

"Are you plays still running?" was the cold-blooded reply.

"No, they were not successful with the public, but the critics praised them highly. You must have heard of them. By the way, what have you done?"

The comely element of the small New York group who have set themselves up as young intellectuals and kept boasting either it is that they borrow the garments of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries and pattern their language after Sydney days when only a handful possessed the power of writing and reading, says Raymond G. Carroll in a New York letter to the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"What have you done?" hurried pointblank at some new acquaintance is a favorite trick, designed to put the world in its place, Caesar talking down at a centurion.

"Not much," replied the later comer, who did not look as if he were particularly hungry. "You see, my friend, I only have to my credit the buildings of one of the great office buildings in New York city, and it is still standing. I am an architect with scores of buildings to my credit. And they are still standing. Yet nobody knows me and I don't mind."

Alas! the reproof was lost upon a mentally saturated with ego, but several well-balanced brains within earshot of the exchange did not miss the victory of the architect.

Paterson Headed for Met. Honors

With But a Few More Games to Be Played—Borgman Still Leading Individual Scores With Carl Husta Second.

Neither Paterson nor Brooklyn was able to make any appreciable gain during the past week in their efforts to capture the second half championship of the Metropolitan Basketball League. Both teams managed to break even in the two games scheduled for each. Paterson defeating Trenton and losing to Brooklyn, while the Prospect Hall favorites were nosed out in a close game at Yonkers.

Paterson is at the head in league standing and it is doubtful if Murray's combination will be beat out for the second half honors. Brooklyn, winners of the first half, are second, with Kingston, Trenton and Yonkers third.

Benny Borgman is still leading the individual scorers with a total of 156. Carl Husta is second with a total of 121.
